- "CGT" means the normal tax attributable to the inclusion of a taxable capital gain in taxable income under section 26A;

- "paragraph" means a paragraph of the Eighth Schedule;
- "qualifying foreign company" means a company as defined in 3.2.3(b);
- "Schedule" means a Schedule to the Act;
- "section" means a section of the Act;
- "tax treaty" means an agreement for the avoidance of double taxation between South Africa and another country;
- "the Act" means the Income Tax Act No. 58 of 1962; and
- any other word or expression bears the meaning ascribed to it in the Act.

1. Purpose

This Note provides guidance and clarity on the interpretation and application of section 9I which deals with headquarter companies. Section 9I was initially inserted into the Act effective for years of assessment commencing on or after 1 January 2011.

The Note also briefly discusses the provisions of the Act that provide special tax relief for headquarter companies, as well as the specific anti-avoidance rules that are designed to prevent misuse or abuse of those provisions.

The Note does not discuss all of the sections which are applicable to headquarter companies. For example, the Note does not discuss "gross income" as defined in section 1(1) or section 11(a) which, although these sections do not specifically refer to headquarter companies, are applicable to headquarter companies.

2. Background

The South African government wishes to promote South Africa as a gateway for investments into Africa. The Explanatory Memorandum on the Taxation Laws Amendment Bill, 2010[1] stated:[2]

> "South Africa is the economic powerhouse of Africa. South Africa's location, sizable economy, political stability and overall strength in financial services make South Africa an ideal location for the establishment of regional holding companies by foreign multinationals. Furthermore, South Africa's network of tax treaties provides ready access to other countries in the region. South Africa is therefore a natural holding company gateway into the region.

[1] W.P. 10 of 2010.

[2] Paragraph 5.4 of the Explanatory Memorandum on the Taxation Laws Amendment Bill, 2010.

> However, in order to serve as an ideal holding company jurisdiction, three sets of South African tax rules were identified as significant barriers: (i) the CFC rules, (ii) the charge on outgoing dividends, and (iii) the thin capitalisation rules."

As part of the initiative to promote South Africa as a location for headquarter companies, the government amended certain provisions of the Act in order to create a more favourable tax dispensation for parties using South Africa as a gateway for investment into Africa.

A headquarter company is subject to tax in the same way as any other resident company, however it is entitled to certain relief from income tax, CGT and dividends tax which is not available to resident companies that are not headquarter companies. As a consequence of the special relief granted to headquarter companies they are also subject to special anti-avoidance rules.

In addition to the headquarter companies themselves, a foreign person receiving interest or royalties from a headquarter company will, under specified circumstances, be exempt from withholding tax on interest and royalties respectively.

3. Definition of "headquarter company"

3.1 The law

The relevant sections of the Act are quoted in the Annexure.

3.2 Application of the law

In order to be a headquarter company for any year of assessment, a company must –[3]

- be a resident (see 3.2.2);
- comply with the requirements of section 9I(2) (see 3.2.3); and
- make an election (see 3.2.1) to be a headquarter company.

3.2.1 Annual election [section 9I(1) and (3)]

The election to be a headquarter company must be in the form and manner determined by the Commissioner. The election must be made for a specific year of assessment and is only valid for that year of assessment. The election is currently recorded in the Income Tax Return for Companies (ITR14) which asks the question "Does the company elect to be a headquarter company in terms of s9I?".

The election is effective from the commencement of the year of assessment for which it is made.

3.2.2 Companies that are residents [section 9I(1)(a)]

Only a company[4] that is a resident may elect to be a headquarter company. In general, a company is a "resident" if it –

- is incorporated, established or formed in South Africa; or

---

[3] Section 1(1) definition of "headquarter company" and section 9I(1).

[4] See section 1(1) for the definition of "company".

- has its place of effective management[5] in South Africa.

The definition excludes any company which is deemed to be exclusively a resident of another country for purposes of the application of any tax treaty.

3.2.3 Requirements of section 9I(2)

A resident company must generally meet three requirements in order to be eligible to elect to be a headquarter company for any year of assessment, namely, –

- the "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement [see 3.2.3(a)];
- the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement [see 3.2.3(b)]; and
- the "50% or more of gross income" requirement [see 3.2.3(c)].

(a) The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement [section 9I(2)(a)]

Section 9I(2)(a) provides that each holder of shares in the company, whether alone or together with any other company forming part of the same group of companies as the holder, must hold 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights in the potential headquarter company. The holder may be a resident or non-resident.

A "group of companies" is defined in section 1(1) as follows:

> " '[G]roup of companies' means two or more companies in which one company (hereinafter referred to as the 'controlling group company') directly or indirectly holds shares in at least one other company (hereinafter referred to as the 'controlled group company'), to the extent that—
> (a) at least 70 per cent of the equity shares of each controlled group company are directly held by the controlling group company, one or more other controlled group companies or any combination thereof; and
> (b) the controlling group company directly holds at least 70 per cent of the equity shares in at least one controlled group company;"

A holder that is a company may hold 10% of the equity shares and voting rights on its own or together with another company that is part of the same group of companies. The equity shares and voting rights held by a connected person, that is not part of the same group of companies, is not relevant. Similarly, if the holder is a natural person or a trust, connected person holdings are not relevant and the natural person or trust must hold 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights itself.

An "equity share" is defined in section 1(1) as follows:

> " '[E]quity share' means any share in a company, excluding any share that, neither as respects dividends nor as respects returns of capital, carries any right to participate beyond a specified amount in a distribution;"

---

[5] See Interpretation Note No. 6 dated 26 March 2002 "Resident: Place of Effective Management (Persons Other Than Natural Persons)" and the Discussion Paper on Interpretation Note 6 for a discussion of the words "place of effective management". In addition, special considerations apply to determining the place of effective management of a foreign investment holding company as defined in the Act.

A distribution, as referred to in the definition of "equity share", could take the form of a distribution of profits[6] (dividends) or capital (return of contributed tax capital).[7] The share will be an equity share as long as the right to participate in either of those types of distribution is unrestricted. The share will not be an equity share if both those rights are restricted.

The 10% holding requirement must be satisfied for both the equity shares and the voting rights in the company. Therefore, each holder that is –

- not a company, must hold 10% or more of both the equity shares and the voting rights in the company; and
- a company must hold 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights directly or together with any other company forming part of the same group of companies.

For example, if a trust holds 10% or more of the equity shares but less than 10% of the voting rights in a company, or vice versa, the company will not meet the requirements of a headquarter company. However, if the holders of the shares are companies and one company holds 10% or more of the equity shares and another company within the same group of companies holds 10% or more of the voting rights, the requirement will be met.

The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement must be met for the entire year of assessment for which a qualifying company wants to make an election to be a headquarter company. That is, the requirement must be met on each and every day of the year of assessment. The shareholding can change within a year of assessment provided that at all times every holder met the "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement. The only exception is for the year of assessment during which the potential headquarter company commences trading. In that year the company does not need to comply with this requirement for any period before the company commenced the carrying on of a trade.[8] See Interpretation Note No. 51 (Issue 3) dated 22 July 2014 "Pre-Trade Expenditure and Losses" for a discussion of the words "carrying on of a trade". Each case must be assessed on its merits when determining when a company commences the carrying on of a trade.

Example 1 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement

Facts:

ABC Trust and Individual A each hold 40% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A. Companies B, C, D and E, that are not companies forming part of the same group of companies, each hold 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A.

---

[6] Depending on the facts profits are not an essential requirement of a dividend.

[7] The term "contributed tax capital" is defined in section 1(1).

[8] The proviso to section 9I(2)(a) applies to years of assessment commencing on or after 1 January 2013.

Result:

Company A cannot elect to be a headquarter company because each of its holders of shares does not hold 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights. Companies B, C, D and E each only hold 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A. Companies B, C, D and E are not part of the same group of companies and accordingly their holdings are considered separately.

Company A has not met the "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement under section 9I(2)(a) and is disqualified from being a headquarter company for that year.

Example 2 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement

Facts:

ABC Trust and Individual A each hold 40% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A.

Companies B, C, D and E each hold 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A. Companies B, C, D and E are 100% held by Company F. Companies B, C, D, E and F are therefore part of the same group of companies.

Result:

Company A has met the "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement under section 9I(2)(a) because each of its holders of shares, together with companies forming part of the same group of companies in the case of holders who are companies, hold 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A. Companies B, C, D and E together hold 20% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A.

Company A can elect to be a headquarter company if the other requirements of section 9I(2) are met.

Example 3 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement

Facts:

ABC Trust and Individual A each hold 40% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A. Companies B, C, D and E each hold 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A which they acquired on 1 March 2011.

Companies B, C, D and E are 100% held by Company F. Companies B, C, D and E only became members of the same group of companies on 31 January 2012.

Company A's year of assessment ends on 31 December.

Result:

Company A did not meet the “10% shareholding and voting rights” requirement of section 9I(2)(a) in the 2011 year of assessment because each of the holders of shares in Company A did not hold 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights for the duration of that year of assessment. Companies B, C, D and E were not part of the same group of companies during the 2011 year of assessment and accordingly their holdings must be considered separately for that year of assessment. Accordingly, Company A cannot elect to be a headquarter company for the 2011 year of assessment.

Company A can also not elect to be a headquarter company for the 2012 year of assessment since Companies B, C, D and E only became members of the same group of companies on 31 January 2012. Each of the holders of shares in Company A did not therefore hold 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights for the duration of that year of assessment.

Company A can elect to be a headquarter company for the 2013 and 2014 years of assessment, if the other requirements of section 9I(2) have been met, since each of the holders of shares in Company A, together with companies forming part of the same group of companies, held 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights for the duration of the 2013 and 2014 years of assessment.

Example 4 – The “10% shareholding and voting rights” requirement

Facts:

Company A holds 100% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B, a potential headquarter company. On 1 March 2014 Company A disposed of 5% of the equity shares and voting rights to Company C that does not form part of the same group of companies as Company A. Company B’s year of assessment ends on 31 December.

Company C was incorporated and commenced trading on 1 March 2014.

Result:

Company B cannot elect to be a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment because each holder of its shares did not hold at least 10% of its equity shares and voting rights for the duration of that year of assessment. The proviso to section 9I(2)(a) which permits the period prior to the commencing of trade to be disregarded refers to the potential headquarter company and is not applicable to Company C.

Company B does not meet the “10% shareholding and voting rights” requirement of section 9I(2)(a) and is disqualified from being a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment.

Example 5 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement

Facts:

Company A and Company B each hold 50% of the equity shares in Company C. Company A holds 95% of the voting rights in Company C and Company B holds 5% of the voting rights.

Result:

Company C cannot elect to be a headquarter company because each holder of its shares does not hold 10% or more of the voting rights in Company C. Company B only holds 5% of the voting rights in Company C.

Company C does not meet the "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement of section 9I(2)(a) and is disqualified from being a headquarter company.

Example 6 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement

Facts:

Company M and Company N each acquired 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in a newly formed resident company, Company O, on 1 December 2010. Company O's year of assessment ends on 30 November.

Result:

Company O could not elect to be a headquarter company for the 2011 year of assessment because section 9I is only effective from the commencement of years of assessment commencing on or after 1 January 2011. Company O's 2011 year of assessment commenced on 1 December 2010.

Assuming the facts do not change, Company O will meet the "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement under section 9I(2)(a) in the 2012 and subsequent years of assessment.

Example 7 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement

Facts:

Company A and Company B each hold 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C. During the 2014 year of assessment Company B sells 25% of the equity shares and voting rights to Company D.

Result:

Notwithstanding the change in shareholding, for the duration of the 2014 year of assessment each holder of shares held 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C. Accordingly, Company C can elect to be a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment if the other requirements of section 9I(2) have been met.

Example 8 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement

Facts:

Company B was incorporated on 15 April 2013 and all its equity shares and voting rights were held by natural persons who each held less than 10% of the equity shares and voting rights. Company B commenced carrying on a trade on 1 July 2013. Company C and Company D each acquired 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B on 1 July 2013.

Company B's year of assessment ends on 31 March.

Result:

Company B has met the "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement under section 9I(2)(a) for the 2014 year of assessment since each holder of shares held 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B from the date that it commenced carrying on a trade in the 2014 year of assessment. Company B can elect to be a headquarter company if the other requirements of section 9I(2) are met.

The fact that each holder of shares did not hold 10% or more of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B during the period 15 April 2013 to 30 June 2013 does not disqualify Company B from meeting the "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement under section 9I(2)(a) because Company B did not carry on a trade during that period.

(b) The "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement [section 9I(2)(b)]

Section 9I(2)(b) requires that 80% or more of the cost of the total assets of the potential headquarter company must be attributable to one or more of the following types of assets at the end of the year of assessment for which that company wishes to make an election and at the end of all previous years of assessment:

- Any interest in equity shares in one or more qualifying foreign companies [section 9I(2)(b)(i)].
- Any debt owed by one or more qualifying foreign companies [section 9I(2)(b)(ii)].
- Intellectual property as defined in section 23I(1) that is licensed by the company to a qualifying foreign company. The same intellectual property may potentially be licenced to a qualifying foreign company and a non-qualifying foreign company. The cost of an item of intellectual property which is licenced to both a qualifying foreign company and another person, for example a South African subsidiary, will be taken into account in the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" calculation because section 9I(2)(b) does not require exclusive licensing to a qualifying foreign company [section 9I(2)(b)(iii)].

A "foreign company" is defined in section 1(1) as any company which is not a resident.

A qualifying foreign company is a foreign company in which the potential headquarter company holds, whether alone or together with any other company forming part of the same group of companies as the potential headquarter company, at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in the foreign company at the end of the year of assessment concerned.

The "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement must be met at the end of the year of assessment for which an election is made to be a headquarter company and at the end of all previous years of assessment of the potential headquarter company. This means that if the requirement is not met in one year of assessment the company will never be able to meet this requirement and will not be eligible to elect to be a headquarter company in that or a future year of assessment.

The particular assets[9] making up the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement may change from one year to the next provided the requirement is met each year. For example, a potential headquarter company could meet the requirement because of the cost of its equity shares in qualifying foreign company A in one year and, notwithstanding having sold its equity shares in qualifying foreign company A in the next year, meet the requirement because of the cost of its newly acquired equity shares in qualifying foreign company B.

The word "cost" refers to the original cost of an asset at the date of performing the calculation and is not adjusted with the amount of any provisions, for example, provision for impairments raised for accounting purposes or any capital allowances claimed. The original cost of an asset is reduced by amounts recovered or recouped or returned by the other party to the potential headquarter company.

The word "debt" is not defined in the Act and should therefore be given its ordinary meaning. In Joint Liquidators of Glen Anil Development Corporation Ltd (In Liquidation) v Hill Samuel (SA) Ltd Holmes AJA held that –[10]

> "the ordinary meaning of debt is 'that which is owed or due; anything (as money, goods or services) which one person is under obligation to pay or render to another'. See Shorter Oxford English Dictionary".

The term "intellectual property" is defined in section 23I(1) as follows:

> " '[I]ntellectual property' means any—
> (a) patent as defined in the Patents Act including any application for a patent in terms of that Act;
> (b) design as defined in the Designs Act;
> (c) trade mark as defined in the Trade Marks Act;
> (d) copyright as defined in the Copyright Act;
> (e) patent, design, trade mark or copyright defined or described in any similar law to that in paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (d) of a country other than the Republic;
> (f) property or right of a similar nature to that in paragraph (a), (b), (c), (d) or (e); and
> (g) knowledge connected to the use of such patent, design, trade mark, copyright, property or right;"

---

9 See above for details regarding the assets which are included in the calculation.

10 1982 (1) SA 103 (A) at 110.

In determining the cost of the total assets of the potential headquarter company, the amount of any cash or any amount in the form of a bank deposit payable on demand must not be taken into account.[11] A deposit with an entity which is not registered as a bank under the Banks Act No. 94 of 1990, or the appropriate banking laws of a country other than South Africa, will not qualify for the exclusion.

The words "payable on demand" mean that the funds deposited with the bank can be obtained upon request. The terms and conditions of the particular bank deposit must be considered when evaluating whether the deposit is payable on demand. For example, a 32-day notice deposit would not qualify as a deposit payable on demand as the investor must wait the prescribed period and cannot obtain the funds upon request. In contrast, if an investor can immediately withdraw the money or request an electronic funds transfer, the deposit will be considered to be payable on demand notwithstanding that there may be a short standard processing delay. A detailed consideration of all the facts applicable is critical.

In addition, in determining whether a company complies with the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement of section 9I(2)(b) in relation to a year of assessment, that year must be disregarded if the company did not at any time during such year of assessment own assets with a total market value exceeding R50 000.[12]

Example 9 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" and the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirements

Facts:

Company A, a resident company, is 100% held by Company D. Company A holds 80% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company B, and 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in another foreign company, Company C. Company A's year of assessment ends on 31 January. The cost of Company A's total assets at the end of the 2014 year of assessment is as follows:

	R
Equity shares in Company B	80 000
Preference shares (not qualifying as equity shares) in Company B	100 000
Loan advanced to Company B	2 000 000
Equity shares in Company C	20 000
Patent licensed to Company C	500 000
Debt owed by companies that are residents	1 000 000
Cost of Company A's total assets	3 700 000

Company D advanced R500 000 to Company A. This amount is included in the R2 million advanced by Company A to Company B. Company B is currently unable to repay the loan and Company A has raised a provision for potential non-recovery of R250 000 against the loan of R2 million.

11 Paragraph (aa) of the proviso to section 9I(2)(b).

12 Paragraph (bb) of the proviso to section 9I(2)(b), applicable to years of assessment commencing on or after 1 January 2013.

Result:

Companies B and C are both qualifying foreign companies because Company A holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in each of the companies.

Company A cannot elect to be a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment because only 70,27% (R2,6 million / R3,7 million) of the cost of Company A's total assets is attributable to assets in, to or by qualifying foreign companies as specified in section 9I(2)(b) (equity shares in Company B and Company C, loan to Company B and patent licensed to Company C).

Company A is disqualified from being a headquarter company under section 9I(2)(b) for the 2014 year of assessment and future years of assessment, even if the requirement is met in a future year of assessment, since less than 80% of the cost of its total assets is attributable to assets in, to or by qualifying foreign companies as specified in section 9I(2)(b) in 2014.

Note: The original amount of the loan of R2 million and not the impaired value of R1 750 000 (R2 million – R250 000) is taken into account in determining the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement.

Example 10 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" and the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirements

Facts:

Company A, a resident company, is 100% held by Company D. Company A holds 80% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company B, and 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in another foreign company, Company C. Company A's year of assessment ends on 31 March. The cost of Company A's total assets at the end of the 2014 year of assessment is as follows:

	R
Equity shares in Company B	80 000
Loan advanced to Company B	2 000 000
Equity shares in Company C	20 000
Patent licensed to Company C	500 000
Debt owed by companies that are residents	100 000
Cost of Company A's total assets	2 700 000

Result:

Company B and Company C are both qualifying foreign companies because Company A holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in each of the companies.

Company A has met the requirement specified under section 9I(2)(b) for the 2014 year of assessment because 96,29% (R2,6 million / R2,7 million) of the cost of Company A's total assets is attributable to assets in, to or by qualifying foreign companies as specified in section 9I(2)(b) (equity shares in Company B and Company C, loan to Company B and patent licensed to Company C).

Company A can potentially qualify as a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment if the other requirements under section 9I(2) are met.

Example 11 – The “10% shareholding and voting rights” and the “80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company” requirements

Facts:

Company A, a resident company, is 100% held by Company D. Company A holds 80% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company B, and 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in another foreign company, Company C. Company A’s year of assessment ends on 31 March. The cost of Company A’s total assets at the end of the 2014 year of assessment is as follows:

	R
Equity shares in Company B	80 000
Loan advanced to Company B	2 000 000
Equity shares in Company C	20 000
Patent licensed to Company C	500 000
Debt owed by companies that are residents	100 000
Cost of Company A’s total assets	2 700 000

Result:

Company B is a qualifying foreign company because Company A holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B.

Company C is not a qualifying foreign company because Company A holds less than 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C. Accordingly, the cost of assets attributable to Company C of R520 000 (R20 000 + R500 000) is ignored in calculating the cost of total assets held by Company A in qualifying foreign companies.

The cost of assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company as specified in section 9I(2)(b) is R2 080 000 (R80 000 + R2 million) which represents 77,03% (R2 080 000 / R2 700 000) of the cost of Company A’s total assets.

Company A is disqualified from being a headquarter company under section 9I(2)(b) for the 2014 year of assessment and future years of assessment, even if the requirement is met in a future year of assessment, since less than 80% of the cost of its total assets is attributable to assets in, by or to qualifying foreign companies as specified in section 9I(2)(b) in 2014.

Example 12 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" and the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirements

Facts:

Company B, a company that is a resident, is 100% held by Company A. Company B holds 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company C. Company D, which is a company forming part of the same group of companies as Company B, holds 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C. The cost of Company B's total assets is as follows at the end of the 2014 year of assessment:

	R
Equity shares in Company C	100 000
Loan advanced to Company C	5 000 000
Current account	2 000 000
Cost of Company B's total assets	7 100 000

Result:

Company C is a qualifying foreign company because Company B, together with Company D, hold at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C. Company B has met the requirement specified under section 9I(2)(b) for the 2014 year of assessment because 100% (R5,1 million / R5,1 million) of the cost of Company B's total assets is attributable to assets in, to or by qualifying foreign companies as specified in section 9I(2)(b).

The current account of R2 million is excluded from the calculation of the cost of Company B's total assets under paragraph (aa) of the proviso to section 9I(2)(b).

Example 13 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" and the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirements

Facts:

Company A, a resident company, is 100% held by Company C. Company A holds 80% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company B. Company A's year of assessment ends on 31 March. The cost and market value of Company A's total assets at the end of the 2013 year of assessment is as follows:

	R
Equity shares in Company B	10 000
Debt owed by companies that are residents	40 000
Cost of Company A's total assets	50 000

The market value of Company A's assets is the same as the cost of the assets. Market value did not exceed R50 000 at any stage during the year.

Result:

Company B is a qualifying foreign company because Company A holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B.

Although only 20% (R10 000 / R50 000) of the cost of Company A's total assets is attributable to assets in, to or by qualifying foreign companies as specified in section 9I(2)(b) (equity shares in Company B) at the end of the 2013 year of assessment, Company A can still potentially qualify as a headquarter company for the 2013 year of assessment if the other requirements under section 9I(2) are met. This is possible because paragraph (bb) of the proviso to section 9I(2)(b) provides that the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement must be disregarded for the 2013 year of assessment as the market value of Company A's total assets did not at any time during the 2013 year of assessment exceed R50 000.

Example 14 – The "10% shareholding and voting rights" and the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirements

Facts:

Company X, a potential headquarter company, held 100% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company Y, a foreign company, for the duration of Company X's 2013 year of assessment that ended on 31 March. On 30 June 2013 Company X disposed of its shares in Company Y to an unconnected person. Company X acquired 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company Z, a foreign company, on 1 July 2013 and a further 25% on 1 March 2014. At the end of both the 2013 and 2014 years of assessment, 80% of the cost of the total assets of Company X was attributable to assets held in Company Y and Company Z.

Result:

Company Y is a qualifying foreign company in 2013 because Company X held at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in that company as at the end of its 2013 year of assessment.

Company Z is a qualifying foreign company in 2014 because Company X held at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in that company as at the end of its 2014 year of assessment. It is of no relevance that Company X only obtained the required shareholding and voting rights of at least 10% on 1 March 2014.

Company X has met the requirement under section 9I(2)(b) for the 2013 and 2014 years of assessment because even though 80% of the cost of the total assets at the end of 2013 and 2014 was attributable to equity shares in different qualifying foreign companies, the requirement that 80% or more of its cost of total assets be attributable to assets in, to or by qualifying foreign companies at the end of the current and all previous years of assessment was met.

Company X can potentially qualify as a headquarter company for the 2013 and 2014 years of assessment if the other requirements under section 9I(2) are met.

(c) The "50% or more of gross income" requirement [section 9I(2)(c)]

When the gross income[13] of a potential headquarter company exceeds R5 million in a year of assessment for which the company wishes to make an election to be a headquarter company, 50% or more of that gross income must consist of amounts in the form of one or more of the following:

- Rental, dividends, interest, royalties or service fees paid or payable by a qualifying foreign company [section 9I(2)(c)(i)].
- Proceeds from the disposal of an interest in equity shares in a qualifying foreign company [section 9I(2)(c)(ii)].
- Proceeds from the disposal of any intellectual property, as contemplated in section 9I(2)(b)(iii), licensed to a qualifying foreign company [section 9I(2)(c)(ii)].

Proceeds from the disposal of equity shares in a foreign company or proceeds from the disposal of intellectual property will often be of a capital nature and will not be included in the gross income of the potential headquarter company. In these circumstances those proceeds would not form part of the "50% or more of gross income" calculation. Only proceeds of a revenue nature will be included in gross income and therefore form part of this calculation.

In determining the gross income of the company any exchange difference determined under section 24I on any exchange item as defined in section 24I(1) to which that company is a party must be disregarded [see 4.2.4(b) for a discussion of section 24I].

Example 15 – The "50% or more of gross income" requirement

Facts:

Company X, a company that is a resident, holds 40% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company Y. Company X also holds 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in another foreign company, Company Z. Company X received the following income during the 2014 year of assessment:

	R
Dividends – Company Y	2 000 000
Interest – Company Z	3 000 000
Management fees – Company Y	900 000
Gross income of Company X	5 900 000

Result:

Company Y is a qualifying foreign company because Company X holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company Y.

Company Z is not a qualifying foreign company because Company X holds less than 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company Z. Accordingly, the interest of R3 million received from Company Z is excluded from the calculation of gross income received by or accrued to Company X from qualifying foreign companies.

13 The term "gross income" is defined in section 1(1). The meaning of this term is not discussed in this Note.

The gross income received by or accrued to Company X from a qualifying foreign company (Company Y) amounts to R2,9 million (R2 million + R900 000) which represents 49,15% (R2,9 million / R5,9 million) of the gross income of Company X.

Company X cannot elect to be a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment because the gross income received by or accrued to it from a qualifying foreign company is less than 50% of Company X's gross income. Company X does not comply with the requirements under section 9I(2)(c) and is disqualified from being a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment.

Example 16 – The "50% or more of gross income" requirement

Facts:

Company X, a company that is a resident, holds 40% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company Y. Company X also holds 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in another foreign company, Company Z. Company X received the following income during the 2014 year of assessment:

	R
Dividends – Company Y	2 000 000
Interest – Company Z	3 000 000
Gross income of Company X	5 000 000

Result:

The gross income of Company X does not exceed R5 million therefore the "50% or more of gross income" requirement under section 9I(2)(c) need not be met. Company X can elect to be a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment if the other requirements of section 9I(2) are met.

Example 17 – Election to be a headquarter company

Facts:

Company A was incorporated in South Africa and commenced carrying on a trade in South Africa on 10 March 2013. Company A's year of assessment ends on 28 February.

The equity shares and voting rights in Company A are equally held by Company B, a company that is a resident, and Company C, a foreign company, since incorporation.

Company A holds 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in two foreign companies, Company M and Company N. The cost of Company A's total assets at the end of the 2014 year of assessment consists of the following:

	R
Equity shares in Company M	100 000
Equity shares in Company N	200 000
Loan advanced to Company M	4 000 000
Patent licensed to Company N	1 000 000
Investments in other companies	300 000
Cost of Company A's total assets	5 600 000

The gross income received by or accrued to Company A during the 2014 year of assessment is as follows:

	R
Dividends – Company M	6 000 000
Dividends – Company N	1 200 000
Interest – Company M	240 000
Royalties – Company N	100 000
Interest – Other companies	18 000
Gross income received by or accrued to Company A	7 558 000

Result:

The "10% shareholding and voting rights" requirement:

Company B and Company C each hold 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A for the duration of the 2014 year of assessment. Each holder of shares therefore holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company A. Accordingly, the requirements under section 9I(2)(a) have been met.

The "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement:

Company A holds 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in both foreign companies, Company M and Company N, at the end of the 2014 year of assessment. Companies M and N are therefore qualifying foreign companies.

The cost of total assets in, to or by qualifying foreign companies as specified in section 9I(2)(b) equals R5,3 million (R5,6 million – R300 000) which represents 94,64% (R5,3 million / R5,6 million) of the cost of Company A's total assets at the end of the 2014 year of assessment. Accordingly, the "80% or more of the cost of total assets in, to or by a qualifying foreign company" requirement in section 9I(2)(b) has been met.

The "50% or more of gross income" requirement:

Gross income received by or accrued to Company A from Company M and Company N in the form of dividends, interest and royalties equals R7 540 000 (R7 558 000 – R18 000) which represents 99,76% (R7 540 000 / R7 558 000) of Company A's gross income for the 2014 year of assessment. Accordingly, the "50% or more of gross income" requirement under section 9I(2)(c) has been met.

Company A can elect to be a headquarter company for the 2014 year of assessment because all the requirements of section 9I(2) have been met.

3.2.4 Other

(a) Years of assessment

The "year of assessment" is a term which is used extensively in section 9I. It is defined in section 1(1) as follows:

> " '[Y]ear of assessment' means any year or other period in respect of which any tax or duty leviable under this Act is chargeable, and any reference in this Act to any year of assessment ending the last or the twenty-eighth or the twenty-ninth day of February shall, unless the context otherwise indicates, in the case of a company or a portfolio of a collective investment scheme in securities be construed as a reference to any financial year of that company or portfolio ending during the calendar year in question."

The term "financial year" is defined in section 1(1) as follows:

" '[F]inancial year', in relation to any company, means—

(a) the period, whether of 12 months or not, commencing upon the date of incorporation or creation of such company and ending upon the last day of February immediately succeeding such date or upon such other date as the Commissioner having regard to the circumstances of the case may approve; or

(b) any period subsequent to the period referred to in paragraph (a), whether of 12 months or not, commencing immediately after the last day of the immediately preceding financial year of such company and ending upon the first anniversary of such last day or upon such other date as the Commissioner having regard to the circumstances of the case may approve;"

Section 27(2) of the Companies Act No. 71 of 2008 provides that the first financial year of a company begins on the date that the incorporation of the company is registered, as stated in its registration certificate, and ends on the date set out in the Notice of Incorporation, which may not be more than 15 months after the date of its incorporation. Section 27(4)(c) of the Companies Act provides that the board of a company may change its financial year end at any time but the date as changed may not result in a financial year ending more than 15 months after the end of the preceding financial year.

(b) Annual report to be submitted to the Minister [section 9I(4)]

A headquarter company must submit an annual report to the Minister within such time and containing such information as the Minister may prescribe.[14]

4. Normal tax and CGT

A headquarter company is subject to normal tax (including normal tax on capital gains) in the same way as any other resident company but it is also subject to some additional provisions (see 4.3) and entitled to certain relief (see 4.2) that is not applicable to resident companies that are not headquarter companies.

4.1 The law

The relevant sections and paragraphs of the Act are quoted in the Annexure.

4.2 Relief from normal tax and CGT

4.2.1 CFCs [section 9D(2)]

This Note does not discuss section 9D in detail. The discussion which follows is limited to the aspects which are affected by a headquarter company.

[14] As at the date of publication of this Note, the Minister has not prescribed any reporting requirements.

A "controlled foreign company" is defined in section 9D(1) as follows:

> " '[C]ontrolled foreign company' means any foreign company[15] where more than 50 per cent of the total participation rights in that foreign company are directly or indirectly held, or more than 50 per cent of the voting rights in that foreign company are directly or indirectly exercisable, by one or more persons that are residents other than persons that are headquarter companies: Provided that— …"

(Our footnote)

Accordingly, when determining if more than 50% of participation rights or voting rights have been met, the participation rights or voting rights that are directly or indirectly held or exercisable by a headquarter company itself are not taken into account. However, the participation rights and voting rights which are indirectly held or exercisable by another person through a headquarter company are taken into account.

Example 18 – Participation rights or voting rights in a CFC

Facts:

Company A, which is a resident, holds 90% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company B, a headquarter company. The other 10% are held by non-residents. Company B holds 100% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company C.

Result:

Company B's 100% holding of the participation rights and voting rights in Company C is not taken into account under the definition of CFC.

However, Company A indirectly holds 90% of the participation rights and voting rights (90% × 100%) in Company C. Company C is therefore a CFC because residents (in this case one resident) hold greater than 50% of the participation rights or voting rights.

Example 19 – Participation rights or voting rights in a CFC

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, holds 100% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company B, a headquarter company. Company B holds 100% of the participation rights and voting rights in a foreign company, Company C.

Result:

Company B's 100% holding of the participation rights and voting rights in Company C is not taken into account under the definition of CFC. In addition, none of the participation rights or voting rights in Company C are indirectly held or exercisable by residents. Accordingly, Company C is not a CFC because residents do not hold or exercise greater than 50% of the participation rights or voting rights.

[15] The term "foreign company" is defined in section 9D(1) for purposes of that section and includes in paragraph (c) of that definition a foreign company as defined in section 1(1) which means any company which is not a resident.

Section 9D(2) generally requires that a portion of a CFC's net income[16] must be included in the income of any resident, other than a resident who is a headquarter company, who directly or indirectly holds any participation rights in a CFC. This is commonly referred to as "attribution". The amount which must be attributed to a particular resident is a proportional amount determined by applying the percentage of the resident's participation rights over the total participation rights in the company on the last day of the year of assessment to the CFC's net income as determined under section 9D.[17]

Attribution of a CFC's net income is not required for a particular resident if that resident, together with a connected person in relation to the resident, in aggregate hold less than 10% of the participation rights and voting rights in that CFC.[18]

Attribution is also not required to the extent the participation rights are indirectly held by a resident through any company which is a resident other than a company which is a headquarter company.[19] Therefore, to the extent the participation rights in the foreign company are indirectly held through an indirect or direct holding of another company which is a resident, excluding headquarter companies, attribution is not required.

Example 20 – Participation rights or voting rights in a CFC

Facts:

Company A and Company B, both residents, each hold 30% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company C, a headquarter company. Company C holds 100% of the participation rights and voting rights in a foreign company, Company D.

Result:

Company C's 100% holding of participation rights and voting rights in Company D is not taken into account in the calculation of the percentage of participation rights and voting rights held by residents in Company D under the definition of CFC. The reason for this exclusion is that Company C is a headquarter company.

However, any participation rights and voting rights that are indirectly held by residents through a headquarter company must be taken into account. Accordingly, because Company A and Company B, that are residents, indirectly hold 60% [(30% + 30%) × 100%] of the participation rights and voting rights in Company D, Company D is a CFC under the definition of CFC.

Under section 9D(2) 30% of Company D's net income must be included in both Company A and Company B's income, if all the other requirements of section 9D are met.

16 As determined under section 9D(2A).
17 Section 9D(2)(a).
18 Paragraph (A) of the proviso to section 9D(2).
19 Paragraph (B) of the proviso to section 9D(2).

Example 21 – Participation rights or voting rights in a CFC

Facts:

Company A and Company B, which are residents, each hold 30% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company C, a headquarter company. Company C holds 80% of the participation rights and voting rights in a foreign company, Company D.

Result:

Company C's 80% holding of participation rights and voting rights in Company D is not taken into account in the calculation of the percentage of participation rights and voting rights held by residents in Company D under the definition of CFC. The reason for this exclusion is that Company C is a headquarter company.

In addition, Company A and Company B only indirectly hold 48% [(30% + 30%) × 80%] of the participation rights and voting rights in Company D. Accordingly, Company D is not a CFC under the definition of CFC since residents do not directly or indirectly hold more than 50% of the participation rights or voting rights in Company D.

Example 22 – Participation rights or voting rights in a CFC and attribution

Facts:

Company A and Company B, which are residents, each hold 30% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company C, a resident company. Company C holds 100% of the participation rights and voting rights Company D, a headquarter company. Company D holds 80% of the participation rights and voting rights in a foreign company, Company E.

Result:

In determining if Company E is a CFC, Company D's direct 80% holding of participation rights and voting rights in Company E are not taken into account under the definition of CFC. However, Company C's indirectly held participation rights and voting rights in Company E must be taken into account. Company C indirectly holds 80% (100% × 80%) of the participation rights and voting rights in Company D which means Company E is a CFC as greater than 50% of those rights are held by residents. It is not necessary to separately consider Companies A and B's indirect holding for purposes of the CFC definition as the requirement of greater than 50% being held by residents has already been met.

Company D is not required to attribute any of Company E's net income as headquarter companies are excluded from section 9D(2).

Company C will be required to include 80% of Company E's net income in its income. The exclusion from attribution under proviso B to section 9D(2) does not apply because Company C's participation rights are indirectly held through Company D which is a headquarter company.

Companies A and B will not be required to attribute any of Company E's net income because their participation rights are indirectly held through Company C which is a resident company that is not a headquarter company. Proviso B to section 9D(2) is therefore applicable.

Example 23 – Participation rights or voting rights in a CFC and attribution

Facts:

Company A holds 100% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company B, a resident company. Company B holds 100% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company C, a headquarter company. Company C holds 100% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company D, a resident company, and 100% of the participation rights and voting rights in a foreign company, Company F. Company D holds 80% of the participation rights and voting rights in a foreign company, Company E.

Result:

Company E and Company F are CFC's as greater than 50% of the participation rights and voting rights in these companies are directly and indirectly held by residents (Company D and Company B respectively) that are not headquarter companies.

Company D is required to include 80% of Company E's net income in its income under section 9D(2).

Company C is not required to attribute any of Company E or Company F's net income as headquarter companies are excluded from section 9D(2).

Company B will not be required to attribute any of Company E's net income because its participation rights are indirectly held through Company D which is a resident company that is not a headquarter company. Proviso B to section 9D(2) is therefore applicable. However, Company B is required to include 100% of Company F's net income in its income under section 9D(2). The exclusion from attribution under proviso B to section 9D(2) does not apply because Company B's participation rights are indirectly held through Company C which is a headquarter company.

Company A will not be required to attribute any of Companies E or F's net income because its participation rights and voting rights are indirectly held through Company B which is a resident company that is not a headquarter company. Proviso B to section 9D(2) is therefore applicable.

Example 24 – Participation rights or voting rights in a CFC and attribution

Facts:

Company A and Company B, which are residents, each hold 50% of the participation rights and voting rights in Company C, a headquarter company. Company C holds 40% of the participation rights and 60% of the voting rights in a foreign company, Company D. Company D's net income was as follows for the 2014 foreign tax year which ended on 28 February:

	R
Rental income	10 000 000
Interest	4 000 000
Total net income	14 000 000

Result:

Company A and Company B indirectly hold 40% [(50% + 50%) × 40%] of the participation rights and 60% [(50% + 50%) × 60%] of the voting rights in Company D. Company D is a CFC because more than 50% of the voting rights are held by residents.

The portion of Company D's net income that must be included in Company A and Company B's income is based on the percentage participation rights held in Company D. The following amounts of net income must be included in both Company A and Company B's income:

	R
Rental income (R10 million × 50% × 40% participation rights)	2 000 000
Interest (R4 million × 50% × 40% participation rights)	800 000
Net income to be included in both Companies A and B's income, respectively	2 800 000

4.2.2 Dividends, foreign dividends and related exemptions from normal tax (paragraph (k) of the definition of "gross income" and sections 10(1)(k)(i) and 10B)

This Note does not discuss the various definitions and sections applicable to dividends and foreign dividends in detail. The discussion which follows is high level and highlights certain aspects which are applicable to dividends and foreign dividends received by or accrued to a headquarter company and to dividends declared or paid by a headquarter company.

(a) Dividends and foreign dividends received by or accrued to a headquarter company and related exemptions from normal tax

Any amount received by or accrued to a resident by way of a dividend or a foreign dividend must be included in gross income.[20] A headquarter company is a resident (see 3.2.2) and must include dividends and foreign dividends received by or accrued to it in gross income.

A "dividend" is defined in section 1(1) and means, in simplified terms, an amount transferred or applied by a company that is a resident for the benefit or on behalf of any person in respect of any share in that company.

A "foreign dividend" is defined in section 1(1) and means, in simplified terms, an amount that is paid or payable by a foreign company in respect of a share in that foreign company where that amount is treated as a dividend or similar payment by that foreign company under the specified laws of that country.

Subject to certain exceptions,[21] dividends that are received by or accrue to a headquarter company are exempt from normal tax under section 10(1)(k)(i). Foreign dividends received by or accrued to a headquarter company may be exempt from normal tax under section 10B [see 4.2.2(c)].

[20] Paragraph (k) of the definition of "gross income" in section 1(1).

[21] Paragraphs (aa) to (ii) of the proviso to section 10(1)(k)(i).

(b) Dividend paid or declared by a headquarter company and related exemptions from normal tax

A dividend received or accrued from a headquarter company is from a source within South Africa and must be included in both a resident and non-resident's gross income.[22] A dividend received or accrued from a headquarter company does not qualify for exemption from normal tax under section 10(1)(k)(i) but qualifies for exemption under section 10B [see 4.2.2(c)].

(c) "Section 10B foreign dividend" exemption from normal tax

Foreign dividends received by or accrued to a person, or dividends paid or declared by a headquarter company, may qualify for an exemption from normal tax under section 10B.[23]

For the purposes of section 10B a "foreign dividend" means a "foreign dividend" as defined in section 1 or a dividend paid or declared by a headquarter company. This Note refers to a foreign dividend under section 10B as a "section 10B foreign dividend".

From a headquarter company perspective a section 10B foreign dividend can be –

- received by or accrued to a headquarter company in which case the possible exemption under section 10B will be applied to the headquarter company; or
- paid or declared by a headquarter company and received by or accrued to a person who is a resident or non-resident in which case the possible exemption under section 10B will be applied to the resident or non-resident.

A section 10B foreign dividend received by or accrued to a person (including a headquarter company) will be exempt –

- if that person, whether alone or together with any other company forming part of the same group of companies as that person, holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in the company declaring the section 10B foreign dividend [section 10B(2)(a)];
- if that person is a foreign company and the foreign dividend is paid or declared by another foreign company that is a resident in the same country as that person [section 10B(2)(b)];[24]
- if that person is a resident then, under certain circumstances, to the extent that the foreign dividend does not exceed the aggregate of all amounts previously attributed from the company which is a CFC [section 10B(2)(c)];
- to the extent that the foreign dividend is received by or accrues to that person on a listed share and does not consist of the distribution of an asset in specie [section 10B(2)(d)]; or
- to the extent that the foreign dividend is received by or accrues to a company that is a resident in respect of a listed share and consists of the distribution of an asset in specie [section 10B(2)(e)].

[22] Paragraph (k) of the definition of "gross income" in section 1(1).

[23] Refer to the Act for the full provisions of section 10B, including the exclusions to the exemption. Only section 10B(1), (2) and (3) are quoted in the Annexure.

[24] See, however, the provisos to section 10B(2), and section 10B(4).

To the extent a section 10B foreign dividend is not exempt under section 10B(2) it will qualify for a partial exemption under section 10B(3). The exempt portion under section 10B(3) is determined by multiplying the section 10B foreign dividend that is not otherwise exempt under section 10B(2) by a factor. The factor, if the person is –

- a natural person, deceased estate, insolvent estate or trust, is 25 / 40;
- a person other than a natural person, deceased estate, insolvent estate or trust, is 13 / 28;
- an insurer in respect of its company policyholder fund and corporate fund, is 13 / 28;[25] or
- an insurer in respect of its individual policyholder fund, is 15 / 30.

The effect of the exemption under section 10B(3) is that section 10B foreign dividends received by or accrued to a person, that are not exempt under section 10B(2), will be subject to a maximum rate of tax of 15%[26] thus giving a result similar to that produced by dividends tax.

Example 25 – Dividends received by or accrued to and declared and paid by a headquarter company

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, and Company B, a resident, each hold 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C, a headquarter company. Company C holds 100% of the unlisted shares in a foreign company, Company D. Company D declares a dividend of R500 000 to Company C on 31 October 2014. Company C declares a dividend of R400 000 to its shareholders on 30 November 2014.

Result:

Normal tax implications:

Dividend of R500 000 received by a headquarter company (Company C):

The foreign dividend of R500 000 received by Company C is included in its gross income under paragraph (k) of the definition of "gross income" in section 1(1). However, the foreign dividend is exempt from normal tax under section 10B(2)(a) since Company C holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company D.

Dividend received by Company A and Company B:

The dividend declared by Company C is from a source within South Africa and must be included in Company A and Company B's gross income under paragraph (k) of the definition of "gross income" in section 1(1).

25 An insurer's risk policy fund will also be subject to the 13 / 28 factor with effect from 1 January 2016.

26 See paragraph 4.3.2 of the Tax Guide for Share Owners (Issue 4) for a discussion of the exemption of foreign dividends under section 10B(3).

The dividend constitutes a section 10B foreign dividend since it is declared by a headquarter company and must therefore be considered for exemption from normal tax under section 10B and not section 10(1)(k)(i). The section 10B foreign dividend is exempt from normal tax under section 10B(2)(a) since Company A and Company B both hold at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C.

Dividends tax implications:[27]

Dividend paid by Company D:

Dividends tax is not levied on the foreign dividend paid by Company D since the dividend is not a "dividend" as defined in section 64D.

Dividend paid by a headquarter company (Company C):

Dividends tax is not levied on the dividend paid by Company C since dividends paid or declared by headquarter companies are specifically excluded from section 64E(1). The dividend declared by Company C does not increase Company B's STC credit under section 64J(2) (see 5.2.4).

4.2.3 Transfer pricing [section 31(5) and (6)]

Very broadly, section 31 determines the taxation of international transactions between connected persons not dealing at arm's length if any person that is a party to that transaction, operation, scheme, agreement or understanding derives a tax benefit from it. Section 31 requires taxpayers to –

- determine whether the actual terms and conditions of any transaction, operation, scheme, agreement or understanding meeting paragraph (a) of the definition of "affected transaction"[28] differ from the terms and conditions that would have existed if the parties had been independent persons dealing at arm's length; and
- to calculate their taxable income based on the arm's length terms and conditions of the affected transaction if there is a difference which results or will result in a tax benefit for one of the parties to the affected transaction.

In general, a headquarter company must comply with the provisions of section 31. For example, section 31 will apply to the rendering of managerial services between a headquarter company and connected persons who are not residents. However, there are two areas when, in specific circumstances, section 31 is not applied to a headquarter company. The two areas and specific circumstances are discussed below.

Section 31(5) provides that when any transaction, operation, scheme, agreement or understanding has been entered into and in terms of which –

- the granting of financial assistance,[29] or
- the granting of the use, right of use or permission to use any intellectual property as defined in section 23I(1),[30]

27 Dividends tax is discussed in 5.2.4.

28 See the definition of "affected transaction" in section 31(1).

29 The term "financial assistance" is defined in section 31(1) and includes any debt, security or guarantee.

30 See 3.2.3(b) for the definition of "intellectual property" in section 23I(1).

is provided –

- by a non-resident to a headquarter company, section 31 will not apply to so much of that financial assistance as is directly applied or to so much of the use, right of use or permission to use intellectual property as is granted to any foreign company in which the headquarter company directly or indirectly holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights[31] and, in the case of intellectual property, the headquarter company does not use it otherwise; or
- by a headquarter company to a foreign company in which the headquarter company directly or indirectly holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights,[32] the provisions of section 31 will not apply to that financial assistance or granting of the use, right of use or permission to use that intellectual property.

Example 26 – Transfer pricing

Facts:

Company A is a headquarter company and holds 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in a foreign company, Company B. Company A and Company B are connected persons in relation to each other.[33] Company A advanced a loan of R10 million to Company B on 31 July 2013. Company A's year of assessment ends on 31 January.

Result:

Under section 31(5)(b), the transfer pricing provisions of section 31 do not apply to the loan of R10 million advanced by Company A to Company B since Company A granted financial assistance to a foreign company in which it holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

Example 27 – Transfer pricing

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, advanced R50 million to Company B, a headquarter company, on 25 March 2013. Company A holds 50% of the equity shares in Company B. Company B advanced R20 million of this loan to Company C and R10 million to Company D on 31 March 2013. Company B holds 20% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C and in Company D. Company C and Company D are foreign companies. Company B is a connected person in relation to Company A, Company C and Company D.[34] Company B's year of assessment ends on 31 January.

31 The headquarter company may hold that interest alone or together with any other company forming part of the same group of companies.

32 The headquarter company may hold that interest alone or together with any other company forming part of the same group of companies.

33 Under paragraphs (d)(v) and (e) of the definition of "connected person" in section 1(1) read with section 31(4).

34 Under paragraphs (d)(v) and (e) of the definition of "connected person" in section 1(1) read with section 31(4).

Result:

R50 million loan granted by Company A to a headquarter company (Company B):

Under section 31(5)(a), section 31 does not apply to R30 million (R20 million + R10 million) of the loan advanced by Company A to Company B because R30 million was advanced to foreign companies (Company C and Company D) in which Company B holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

Section 31 must be applied to the remaining portion of R20 million (R50 million – R20 million – R10 million) which was not advanced by Company B to a foreign company in which Company B holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

Note:

Section 20C may apply if Company B incurred interest on the loan advanced by Company A (see 4.3.1).

R20 million loan granted by a headquarter company (Company B) to Company C and R10 million granted by Company B to Company D

Under section 31(5)(b), section 31 does not apply to the loans advanced by Company B to Company C and Company D because Company B holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C and Company D.

Example 28 – Transfer pricing

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, granted the right of use of a patent to Company B, a headquarter company, on 30 June 2013. Company A holds 20% of the equity shares in Company B.

On 15 July 2013 Company B granted this right of use of the patent to Company C, a foreign company in which Company B holds 40% of the equity shares and voting rights. This was the only use of the patent.

Company B paid royalties of R2 million to Company A and received royalties of R1 million from Company C.

Company B's year of assessment ends on 28 February. Company B is a connected person in relation to Company A and Company C.[35]

Result:

Under section 31(5)(c), section 31 does not apply to the granting of the right of use of the patent by Company A to Company B since Company B only granted the right of use of the patent to a foreign company (Company C) in which it holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

[35] Under paragraphs (d)(v) and (e) of the definition of "connected person" in section 1(1) read with section 31(4).

Under section 31(5)(d), section 31 does not apply to the granting of the right of use of the patent by Company B to Company C since Company B holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C.

Note:

Section 20C(2A) may apply to limit the deduction for royalties paid by Company B to the amount of royalties received from Company C (see 4.3.2).

Section 31(6) provides that if a person that is a resident, other than a headquarter company, grants –

- financial assistance, or
- the use, right of use or permission to use any intellectual property

to a CFC in relation to that resident or to a CFC in relation to a company that forms part of the same group of companies as the resident, section 31 does not apply to that granting provided certain requirements are met.[36] The exclusion in section 31(6) does not apply to headquarter companies.

4.2.4 Foreign currency provisions [sections 24I(3), 25D(4) and (7), and paragraph 43(1A) and (6A)]

(a) Determination of taxable income of a headquarter company in foreign currency [section 25D(4) and (7)]

Section 25D specifies when and at what rate an amount or value denominated in a foreign currency must be translated to an amount in rand (see Interpretation Note No. 63 dated 19 September 2011 "Rules for the Translation of Amounts Measured in Foreign Currencies" for a detailed interpretation of section 25D and the draft for Issue 2 of that Note). Section 25D contains the core rules for the translation of amounts expressed in foreign currency to rand, however there are other sections which contain rules for specific circumstances that often override the core rules in section 25D, for example section 6*quat*(4).

The translation of an amount in foreign currency to rand is essential because any liability of a person for normal tax must be expressed in rand.

A headquarter company's functional currency (see definition and discussion below) could be a foreign currency or it could be the rand.

Section 25D(4) applies to a headquarter company which has a functional currency other than the rand. In circumstances when a headquarter company's functional currency is rand the other provisions of section 25D must be considered.[37]

Under section 25D(4) a headquarter company that has a functional currency other than the rand must determine taxable income in its functional currency and translate that figure to rand using the applicable average exchange rate. In determining taxable income a headquarter company's receipts, accruals and expenditure which are denominated in a currency other than the functional currency of the headquarter

[36] See section 31(6)(i) and (ii).

[37] The other provisions of section 25D are not discussed in this Note. See Interpretation Note No. 63 dated 19 September 2011 "Rules for the Translation of Amounts Measured in Foreign Currencies" for a detailed interpretation of section 25D and the draft for Issue 2 of that Note.

company, including amounts in rand, must be translated to the headquarter company's functional currency.

The term "functional currency" is defined in section 1(1) as follows:

> " '[F]unctional currency', in relation to—
> (a) a person, means the currency of the primary economic environment in which the business operations of that person are conducted; and
> (b) a permanent establishment of any person, means the currency of the primary economic environment in which the business operations of that permanent establishment are conducted;"

The accounting treatment of foreign currency transactions is addressed in IAS 21.[38] The term "functional currency", as defined in section 1(1), corresponds closely with the definition of that term in IAS 21. As a result IAS 21 can provide useful guidance in interpreting and applying the definition of "functional currency" for income tax purposes.

The accounting definition of "functional currency" is as follows:[39]

> "Functional currency is the currency of the primary economic environment in which the entity operates."

IAS 21 describes the primary economic environment in which an entity operates as normally the one in which it primarily generates and expends cash. The functional currency will usually be the currency in which, amongst other things, –

- sales prices of goods and services are denominated and settled; or
- costs of providing goods or services are denominated or settled.[40]

Additional factors which may be considered include –

- the currency of financing activities (debt and equity instruments); and
- the currency in which receipts from operating activities are retained.[41]

As a practical matter, SARS will generally accept the functional currency used by a person for financial accounting purposes as its functional currency provided that the determination of that functional currency is made in accordance with IAS 21. For example, if a headquarter company has a United Kingdom parent company and the headquarter company primarily transacts in British pounds, its functional currency may be the British pound.

[38] IAS 21 is the International Accounting Standard 21 "The Effects of Changes in Foreign Exchange Rates". IAS 21 prescribes that when a reporting entity prepares financial statements, each individual entity included in the reporting entity – whether it is a stand-alone entity, an entity with foreign operations (such as a parent) or a foreign operation (such as a subsidiary or branch) – must determine its functional currency and measure its results and financial position in that currency.

[39] IAS 21 in paragraph 8 under the heading: Definitions.

[40] IAS 21 in paragraph 9.

[41] IAS 21 in paragraph 10.

Section 25D(4) does not state how amounts not expressed in the functional currency of the headquarter company must be translated to its functional currency. As a practical matter it will be acceptable to SARS if –

- the spot rate is used to translate other currencies (including rand) to the headquarter company's functional currency and, if applicable, to the headquarter company's permanent establishment's functional currency; and
- the average exchange rate is used to translate taxable income of a headquarter company's permanent establishment to the headquarter company's functional currency if the headquarter company's permanent establishment has a different functional currency to that of the headquarter company.

Once the income and expenses of a headquarter company are determined in the functional currency of the headquarter company, these amounts, together with amounts denominated in the headquarter company's functional currency, must be translated from the functional currency to rand at the average exchange rate for the year of assessment.[42]

The term "spot rate" is defined in section 1(1) as follows:

> " '[S]pot rate' means the appropriate quoted exchange rate at a specific time by any authorised dealer in foreign exchange for the delivery of currency;"

The term "average exchange rate" is defined in section 1(1) as follows:

> " '[A]verage exchange rate' in relation to a year of assessment means the average determined by using the closing spot rates at the end of daily or monthly intervals during that year of assessment which must be consistently applied within that year of assessment;"

Example 29 – Determination of taxable income of a headquarter company in foreign currency

Facts:

The functional currency of Company A, a headquarter company, is the US $. Company A's taxable income for the 2014 year of assessment, ending on 31 March, is $330 000. Assume for purposes of this example that the average exchange rate for the year of assessment, is $1 = R8.

Result:

As the functional currency of Company A is the US $, taxable income must be calculated in US $ and then translated to rand using the average exchange rate for the year of assessment. Company A's taxable income for the 2014 year of assessment is R2 640 000 ($330 000 × R8).

[42] Under section 25D(4) and (7).

(b) Gains or losses on foreign exchange transactions [section 24I(3)]

Under section 24I(3) in determining taxable income a specified person[43] must include in or deduct from that person's income –

- any exchange difference in respect of an "exchange item" of or in relation to such person, subject to section 24I(10A);
- any premium or like consideration received by or paid by such person under a foreign currency option contract entered into by such person; or
- any consideration paid by such person under a foreign currency option contract acquired by such person.

This effectively requires the inclusion of gains and losses on foreign exchange transactions in taxable income irrespective of whether realised or not and whether of a capital or revenue nature.

An exchange difference[44] means, in simple terms, the realised or unrealised foreign exchange gain or foreign exchange loss on an exchange item during a year of assessment which is determined by multiplying the exchange item by the difference in the ruling exchange rates[45] on two different dates.

An "exchange item" is defined in section 24I(1) as follows:

> " '[E]xchange item' of or in relation to a person means an amount in a foreign currency—
> (a) which constitutes any unit of currency acquired and not disposed of by that person;
> (b) owing by or to that person in respect of a debt incurred by or payable to such person;
> (c) owed by or to that person in respect of a forward exchange contract; or
> (d) where that person has the right or contingent obligation to buy or sell that amount in terms of a foreign currency option contract;"

An exchange difference is determined on each exchange item for the year of assessment in which such exchange item arose (broadly, the foreign exchange movement between the transaction date and translation at the end of the year of assessment), as well as every subsequent year of assessment until, and including, the year of assessment in which such exchange item is realised (broadly, the foreign exchange movement between the last translation date and the realisation date or the transaction date and realisation date if realised in the same year of assessment).[46]

A "foreign currency option contract" is defined in section 24I(1) as follows:

> " '[F]oreign currency option contract' means any agreement in terms of which any person acquires or grants the right to buy from or to sell to any other person a

---

[43] The persons subject to section 24I are specified in section 24I(2) and include a company and therefore a headquarter company.

[44] The term "exchange difference" is defined in section 24I(1) – the definition is included below.

[45] The ruling exchange rate is defined taking into account the type of exchange item and the particular date (transaction, translation and realisation) – see the definition of "ruling exchange rate" in section 24I(1).

[46] The term "realised" is defined in section 24I(1).

certain amount of a nominated foreign currency on or before a future expiry date at a specified exchange rate;"

The term "foreign currency" as defined in section 24I(1) means, in relation to an exchange item of any person, any currency which is not local currency.

The term "local currency" is defined in section 24I(1). The following paragraphs of the definition apply to a headquarter company:

" '[L]ocal currency' means in relation to—

(a) any person in respect of an exchange item which is attributable to any permanent establishment outside the Republic, the functional currency of that permanent establishment: Provided that for purposes of this paragraph any exchange item shall be deemed not to be attributable to any such permanent establishment if the functional currency of that permanent establishment is the currency of a country which has an official rate of inflation of 100 per cent or more throughout the relevant year of assessment;

(d) any headquarter company in respect of an exchange item which is not attributable to a permanent establishment outside the Republic, the functional currency of that headquarter company;"

Therefore, in the case of a headquarter company, if the unit of currency, the debt, the forward exchange contract or the foreign currency option contract is not attributable to a permanent establishment outside of South Africa and it is denominated in the headquarter company's functional currency, it will not constitute an exchange item as defined above. The reason being that it is dominated in the headquarter company's local currency. In the absence of an exchange item[47] as defined, section 24I does not apply.

A headquarter company will, however, be subject to section 24I on gains and losses on foreign exchange transactions, if the unit of currency, the debt, the forward exchange contract or the foreign currency option contract is not attributable to a permanent establishment outside of South Africa and it is denominated in a foreign currency (that is a currency other than its functional currency) such that it has exchange items as defined above.

In the case of a unit of currency, a debt, a forward exchange contract or a foreign currency option contract that is attributable to a permanent establishment outside of South Africa the same principle applies, however the functional currency of the permanent establishment, which could be different to the headquarter company's function currency, is considered to be local currency. In this situation it would be necessary to calculate the headquarter company and its permanent establishment's foreign exchange gains and losses separately before including them in taxable income.

[47] Assuming one is not dealing with a premium or like consideration on a foreign currency option contract.

Example 30 – Gains on foreign exchange transactions

Facts:

The functional currency of Company X, a headquarter company, is the US $. Company X advanced $100 000 to Company Y, a foreign company on 1 January 2012 when $1 = R9. This debt was still outstanding on 31 December 2013. Assume $1 = R10 on 31 December 2012 and $1 = R11 on 31 December 2013. Company X's year of assessment ends on 31 December.

Result:

Company X is not subject to section 24I(3) since the debt does not constitute an "exchange item" as defined in section 24(1) as it is denominated in Company X's local currency (that is, its functional currency).

(c) Assets disposed of or acquired in foreign currency [paragraph 43(1A) and (6A)]

Paragraph 43 is discussed in detail in the Comprehensive Guide to Capital Gains Tax (Issue 4 and draft Issue 5) in Chapter 19. Only paragraphs 43(1A) and (6A) are discussed below.

The capital gain or capital loss arising from the acquisition or disposal of assets in foreign currency must be determined in rand. Paragraph 43 provides the rules for converting the various components making up the capital gain or loss (proceeds, expenditure and when applicable, market value) to rand. It specifies when the conversion must take place and the appropriate exchange rate to be used. Paragraph 43 takes precedence over section 25D.

The term "foreign currency" as defined in paragraph 43(7) means currency other than local currency. The term "local currency" is defined in paragraph 43(7) and means, in relation to a headquarter company, in respect of amounts not attributable to a permanent establishment outside South Africa, the functional currency of that headquarter company. Local currency in relation to a headquarter company's permanent establishment outside of South Africa means that permanent establishment's functional currency (other than the currency of any country in the common monetary area).

Paragraph 43(1A) applies to companies and provides that if a person disposes of an asset for proceeds in a foreign currency, or after having incurred expenditure on the asset in a foreign currency, the person must, for purposes of determining the capital gain or capital loss on the disposal of the asset, translate the proceeds and expenditure as follows:

- The proceeds must be translated to the local currency at the average exchange rate for the year of assessment in which the asset was disposed of, or at the spot rate on the date of disposal of the asset.
- The expenditure must be translated to local currency at the average exchange rate for the year of assessment during which the expenditure was incurred, or at the spot rate on the date on which the expenditure was incurred.
- After a capital gain or loss has been determined in the headquarter company's or its foreign permanent establishment's local currency, that local currency amount (assuming it is in a currency other than the rand) must be translated to rand using the average exchange rate for the year of assessment.[48]

Example 31 – Assets disposed of in foreign currency

Facts:

The functional currency of Company C, a headquarter company, is the Botswana Pula (BWP). Company C purchased 5% of the equity shares in Company D, a foreign company, on 1 March 2011 for BWP100 000 as a capital investment. On 15 December 2013, Company C disposed of the equity shares in Company D for $20 000. Assume that the average exchange rates for the 2014 year of assessment is $1 = BWP7,98 and BWP1 = R1,12.

Company C's year of assessment ends on 28 February.

Result:

The currency of the purchase price of the equity shares in Company D was Botswana Pula. Paragraph 43(1A) provides that the proceeds on disposal of the equity shares must be translated to the functional currency of the headquarter company at the average exchange rate for the year of assessment. The proceeds on disposal of the equity shares in Botswana Pula is BWP159 600 ($20 000 × BWP7,98).

The capital gain on disposal of the equity shares is calculated as follows:

	BWP
Proceeds	159 600
Base cost	100 000
Capital gain	59 600

The capital gain must be translated to rand at the average exchange rate for the 2014 year of assessment as follows:

	R
Capital gain (BWP59 600 × R1,12)	66 752

Paragraph 43(6A) provides that paragraph 43(1A) does not apply to the disposal of –

- any amount of a debt owed to a person denominated in a foreign currency [paragraph (b)]; or
- any right of that person arising from any contractual agreement or arrangement to which that person and another party are parties when –
    - that contractual agreement or arrangement gives rise to that right and to a corresponding obligation of the other party; and
    - the value of that right and the amount of that obligation are determined directly or indirectly with reference to a debt owed to a person that is denominated in a foreign currency.

The exclusion under paragraph 43(6A)(b) avoids the duplication of currency gains and losses arising under section 24I. It follows that a person falling outside paragraph 43(1A) because of the exclusion in paragraph 43(6)(b) must determine a capital gain or loss under the core rules of the Eighth Schedule taking into account section 24I and section 25D.

[48] Section 25D(2), (4) and (7).

Section 24I(6) prevents any double taxation or double deduction arising when there is an overlap between section 25D and section 24I, or for that matter section 25D and paragraph 43. Section 24I(6) provides that –

> "(a)ny inclusion in or deduction from income in terms of this section shall be in lieu of any deduction or inclusion which may otherwise be allowed or included under any other provision of this Act".

Example 32 – Exclusion of debt from paragraph 43(1A)

Facts:

Company B, a headquarter company, acquired a foreign bond as a long-term investment during its first year of assessment when X$1 = R1 for X$100. At the end of the first year of assessment the exchange rate was X$1:R1,40 and at the end of year 2 X$1:R2. On the last day of year 2 Company B disposed of the bond for an amount received or accrued of X$120. Company B's functional currency is the rand.

Result:

Section 24I:

Year 1:

	R
Exchange item of X$100 × R1,40 (translation rate)	140
Less: Exchange item of X$100 × R1 (transaction rate)	(100)
Exchange difference included in income [Note 1]	40

Year 2:

Exchange item of X$100 × R2 (realisation rate)	200
Less: Exchange item of X$100 × R1,40 (Year 1 translation rate)	(140)
Exchange difference included in income [Note 1]	60

Section 25D:

Year 2:

Amount received or accrued on disposal (X$120 × R2 spot rate) [Note 2]	240
Less: Base cost of bond (X$100 × R1 spot rate) [Note 2]	(100)
Capital gain determined in rand before eliminating double taxation under section 24I(6)	140
Less: Amounts of exchange differences previously included in income under section 24I [section 24I(6)]	(100)
Capital gain in rand to be included in taxable income [Note 3]	40

Notes:

(1) Section 24I applies to the headquarter company because the bond is an exchange item, that is the bond is an amount in foreign currency owed to Company B [see 4.2.4(b)].

(2) The spot rate is applied in accordance with section 25D(1). Section 25D(4) does not apply because Company B's functional currency is the rand [see 4.2.4(a)].

(3) Paragraph 43(1A) is not applicable under paragraph 43(6A).

Example 33 – Exclusion of debt from paragraph 43(1A)

Facts:

Company C, a headquarter company, acquired a foreign bond as a long-term investment during its first year of assessment when X$1 = R1 for X$100. At the end of the first year of assessment the exchange rate was X$1:R1,40 and at the end of year 2 X$1:R2. On the last day of year 2 Company C disposed of the bond for an amount received or accrued of X$80. Company C's functional currency is the rand.

Result:

Section 24I:

Year 1:

	R
Exchange item of X$100 × R1,40 (translation rate)	140
Less: Exchange item of X$100 × R1 (transaction rate)	(100)
Exchange difference included in income [Note 1]	40

Year 2:

Exchange item of X$100 × R2 (realisation rate)	200
Less: Exchange item of X$100 × R1,40 (Year 1 translation rate)	(140)
Exchange difference included in income [Note 1]	60

Section 25D:

Year 2:

Amount received or accrued on disposal (X$80 × R2 spot rate) [Note 2]	160
Less: Base cost of bond (X$100 × R1 spot rate) [Note 2]	(100)
Capital gain determined in rand before eliminating double taxation under section 24I(6)	60
Less: Amounts of exchange differences previously included in income under section 24I	(100)
Capital loss in rand to be off-set against other capital gains [Note 3]	(40)

Notes:

(1) Section 24I applies to the headquarter company because the bond is an exchange item, that is the bond is an amount in foreign currency owed to Company C [see 4.2.4(b)].

(2) The spot rate is applied in accordance with section 25D(1). Section 25D(4) does not apply because Company C's functional currency is the rand [see 4.2.4(a)].

(3) Paragraph 43(1A) is not applicable under paragraph 43(6A).

4.2.5 Disposal of equity shares in a foreign company and foreign return of capital received from a foreign company [paragraph 64B(2) and (4)]

(a) Disposal of equity shares in a foreign company [paragraph 64B(2)]

Under paragraph 64B(2) a headquarter company must disregard a capital gain or capital loss on the disposal of equity shares in a foreign company if the headquarter company, whether alone or together with any other person forming part of the same group of companies as the headquarter company, immediately before that disposal held at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in the foreign company.

Paragraph 64B(2) does not apply to an interest contemplated in paragraph 2(2), namely, if 80% or more of the market value of the equity shares in a foreign company is directly or indirectly attributable to immovable property in South Africa held otherwise than as trading stock and the headquarter company (whether alone or together with any connected person in relation to that headquarter company), directly or indirectly, holds at least 20% of the equity shares in that company. Paragraph 64B(2) is also subject to paragraph 64B(4) – [see 4.2.5(b)]

Paragraph 64B(5) provides that paragraph 64B(2) does not apply to the disposal of equity shares in a portfolio comprised in an investment scheme carried on outside South Africa that is comparable to a portfolio of a collective investment scheme in participation bonds or a portfolio of a collective investment scheme in securities.

Should a person dispose of equity shares in a foreign company in batches, the capital gain or capital loss will only be disregarded while the person holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in the foreign company. As soon as the person falls below the 10% threshold, any further capital gains and losses on disposal of equity shares in the foreign company may not be disregarded despite those shares having been held at an earlier time when the threshold was exceeded.

Example 34 – Disposal of equity shares in a foreign company

Facts:

Company A, a headquarter company, acquired 100% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B, a foreign company on 31 January 2011. Company A disposed of the shares on 31 May 2013 to Company C which is a connected person in relation to Company A.

Result:

Under paragraph 64B(2) Company A must disregard the capital gain or capital loss on disposal of the equity shares in Company B since it held at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B immediately before the disposal.

Note:

Paragraph 64B(2) applies even though the equity shares were disposed of to a connected person in relation to Company A.

(b) Disregarding of a capital gain resulting from a foreign return of capital [paragraph 64B(4)]

Paragraph 64B(4) provides that a person must disregard a capital gain on a foreign return of capital received by or accrued to that person from a foreign company,[49] if that person, whether alone or together with any other person forming part of the same group of companies as that person, holds at least 10% of the total equity shares and voting rights in that company. Such a capital gain could, for example, arise under paragraph 76B if a foreign return of capital exceeds the expenditure contemplated in paragraph 20 in respect of the share or shares in respect of which the foreign return of capital is received.

Paragraph 76B governs the CGT treatment of a foreign return of capital[50] received by or accrued to a person in respect of a share on or after 1 April 2012. For example, paragraph 76B(2) provides that the base cost of a share must be reduced by the amount or market value of a foreign return of capital comprising a distribution of cash or an asset in specie received by or accrued to a holder of a share in respect of that share on or after 1 April 2012 but before disposal of the share. Should a foreign return of capital exceed the base cost of a share, the excess will be treated as a capital gain in the hands of the holder of the share under paragraph 76B(3).

Paragraph 64B(4) does not apply to an interest contemplated in paragraph 2(2), namely, if 80% or more of the market value of the equity shares in a foreign company is directly or indirectly attributable to immovable property in South Africa held otherwise than as trading stock and the headquarter company (whether alone or together with any connected person in relation to that headquarter company), directly or indirectly, holds at least 20% of the equity shares in that company.

Paragraph 64B(5) provides that paragraph 64B(4) does not apply to a foreign return of capital by a portfolio comprised in an investment scheme carried on outside South Africa that is comparable to a portfolio of a collective investment scheme in participation bonds or a portfolio of a collective investment scheme in securities.

Example 35 – Disregarding of a capital gain arising from a foreign return of capital

Facts:

Company A, a headquarter company, holds 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B, a foreign company. The base cost of the equity shares acquired on 1 June 2011 was R100 000. On 30 April 2013 Company A received a foreign return of capital of R130 000 from Company B.

Company A's year of assessment ends on 31 March.

[49] As defined in section 9D(1) (see 4.2.1).

[50] The term "foreign return of capital" is defined in section 1(1) and specifically excludes a foreign dividend.

Result:

Paragraph 76B(2) provides that the base cost of the equity shares must be reduced by the amount of the foreign return of capital. The base cost of the shares in Company B is therefore reduced to nil (R100 000 – R100 000). The excess of R30 000 (R130 000 – R100 000) is treated as a capital gain under paragraph 76B(3). The capital gain of R30 000 must, however, be disregarded under paragraph 64B(4), since Company A held at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B.

4.2.6 Issuing of shares constituting a disposal [paragraph 11(2)(b)]

Paragraph 11(2)(b) provides that there is no disposal of an asset for CGT purposes by a company (which includes a headquarter company) in respect of—

- the issue, cancellation or extinction of a share in the company; or
- the granting of an option to acquire a share in or certificate acknowledging or creating a debt owed by that company, other than a share, option or certificate issued to any person by a company that is a resident in exchange, directly or indirectly, for shares in a foreign company.

Accordingly, in the situation when a company, including a headquarter company, issues shares to a foreign company in exchange for shares in that foreign company or another foreign company, the issuing of the shares will constitute a disposal for CGT purposes as paragraph 11(2)(b) will not apply.

Although it is not unique to headquarter companies, it is raised in this Note as the CGT consequences could be significant and in practice a disposal of this nature could often be triggered in the context of headquarter companies.

4.2.7 Rebate or deduction for foreign taxes on income [sections 6*quat*(1A) and (1C) and 6*quin*(1)]

Foreign-sourced amounts derived by a resident, including a headquarter company, may sometimes be taxed by both the country of source and South Africa, resulting in juridical double taxation.

Relief from double taxation resulting from the imposition of tax by a residence country and a source country on the same taxpayer and on the same amount is normally granted by the residence country. Thus, the source country's right to tax has priority over the residence country's right to tax. In many instances, countries provide for relief from juridical double taxation under a tax treaty. One of the main purposes of a tax treaty is to protect taxpayers against double taxation by allocating the right to tax the amount of income (or capital) to one of the contracting states. However, in some instances both states have the right to tax such income or capital thus requiring relief from double taxation to be provided for by the state of residence of the taxpayer. This may be achieved through domestic legislation or the tax treaty itself. Domestic legislation will also cover situations when a tax treaty is not applicable.

South Africa provides relief to its residents from double taxation in its domestic law mainly by way of three different rebate methods for foreign taxes on income or a deduction for foreign taxes on income. The rebate and deduction methods are supplemented by a number of exemptions for foreign-sourced amounts received by or accrued to residents (for example, the exemption for foreign dividends see 4.2.2).

The following rebate methods are employed in South Africa:

- Section 6*quat*(1) which is the principal mechanism used to provide relief for foreign taxes proved to be payable on income derived from a foreign source that is included in a resident's taxable income. Foreign taxes falling within this category do not qualify for the section 6*quat*(1C) deduction or the section 6*quin* rebate (see below).
- Section 6*quin* which provides for relief for foreign taxes paid on South African-sourced service income included in a resident's taxable income. Foreign taxes falling within this category may also qualify for a deduction under section 6*quat*(1C) (see below) – in these circumstances the taxpayer may choose the rebate under section 6*quin* or the deduction under section 6*quat(*1C), not both.
- Section 64N which provides for relief from foreign taxes paid on foreign cash dividends paid by a foreign company in respect of its shares listed on the JSE.[51]

Sections 6*quat*(1) and 6*quin* provide for the deduction of foreign taxes against normal tax payable. The sections are mutually exclusive.

Under section 6*quat*(1C) a resident may claim foreign taxes, that do not qualify for the section 6*quat*(1) rebate, as a deduction in determining taxable income. That is, essentially, foreign taxes payable on South African-sourced amounts.

A resident qualifying for a section 6*quat*(1C) deduction may also qualify for a rebate under section 6*quin* when foreign taxes are paid on South African-sourced service income. In these circumstances the resident can elect to claim the foreign taxes as a deduction under section 6*quat*(1C) or as a rebate under section 6*quin*, not both.

Section 6*quin* is narrower than section 6*quat(1C)* as it only caters for foreign taxes paid on South African-sourced income from services while section 6*quat*(1C) caters for foreign taxes proved to be payable on any amounts of South African-sourced income.

See Interpretation Note No. 18 (Issue 2) dated 31 March 2009 "Rebate or deduction for foreign taxes on income" and Draft Interpretation Note No. 18 (Issue 3) "Rebate and deduction for foreign taxes on income" for a discussion of section 6*quat* and section 6*quin*.

4.3 Ring-fencing of interest and royalties incurred by headquarter companies (section 20C)

Section 20C governs the deductibility of –

- interest incurred on financial assistance[52] granted by a person that is not a resident to a headquarter company; and

[51] The exemption under 64F(1)(a) will apply to cash foreign dividends paid on JSE listed shares if the beneficial owner is a headquarter company. Under sections 64G(2)(a) and 64H(2)(a) no dividends tax must be withheld if the relevant declarations of exemption and written undertakings contemplated in these sections are submitted timeously.

[52] The term "financial assistance" is defined in section 20C(1) and means financial assistance contemplated in section 31(1).

- royalties payable by a headquarter company to a person that is not a resident.

4.3.1 Ring-fencing of interest incurred by headquarter companies

Section 20C(2) applies if –

- financial assistance is granted by a person that is not a resident, and
- if that person is a company, that directly or indirectly, whether alone or together with any company forming part of the same group of companies as that person, holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting right in the headquarter company.

The consequences of section 20C(2) applying are that the deduction allowable on any interest incurred by the headquarter company in respect of that financial assistance is limited to so much of the interest received by or accrued to the headquarter company on the portion of that financial assistance that was directly applied by the headquarter company as financial assistance to a foreign company in which the headquarter company directly or indirectly, whether alone or together with any company forming part of the same group of companies as the headquarter company, holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

An amount of interest that is disallowed as a deduction under section 20C(2) must –

- under section 20C(3)(a) be carried forward to the immediately succeeding year of assessment of the headquarter company; and
- under section 20C(3)(b)(i) be deemed to be an amount of interest actually incurred by the headquarter company during that succeeding year of assessment in respect of financial assistance granted to the headquarter company by a person that is not a resident.

Example 36 – Ring-fencing of interest incurred by a headquarter company

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, holds 20% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B, a headquarter company. These companies are connected persons in relation to each other.[53] Company A advanced a loan of R5 million to Company B. Company B used the loan to fund the building of offices in South Africa.

Company B incurred interest of R500 000 on the loan from Company A for the 2014 year of assessment which ends on 31 December.

Result:

The provisions of section 31 must be evaluated in order to assess whether they apply to the loan of R5 million. The exclusion in section 31(5)(a) does not apply to the financial assistance of R5 million granted by Company A to Company B because Company B did not on-lend the funds to a qualifying foreign company. Section 31 applies before section 20C(2).

[53] Under paragraphs (d)(v) and (e) of the definition of “connected person” in section 1(1) read with section 31(4).

The deduction for the interest of R500 000 incurred by Company B is limited under section 20C(2) to nil because Company B did not use the funds to make an advance to a foreign company in which Company B holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights. The excess of R500 000 (R500 000 – Rnil) is carried forward to Company B's 2015 year of assessment under section 20C(3)(a) and is deemed under section 20C(3)(b)(i) to be an amount of interest actually incurred by Company B during the 2015 year of assessment on financial assistance granted to Company B by a person that is not a resident. The amount carried forward to 2015 will be less than R500 000 if an adjustment was required under section 31.

Example 37 – Ring-fencing of interest incurred by a headquarter company

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, holds 20% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company B, a headquarter company. Company A advanced a loan of R20 million to Company B. Company B in turn advanced R20 million (the first loan) to another foreign company, Company C, in which it holds 100% of the equity shares and voting rights. Company B also advanced a loan of R5 million (the second loan) to Company C that was not financed out of the funds obtained from Company A.

Company B incurred interest of R2,4 million on the loan from Company A for the 2013 year of assessment which ends on 31 December. Company B received interest of R1 million on the first loan and R250 000 on the second loan. During the 2014 year of assessment no interest is incurred by Company B but interest of R1 million is received on the first loan and R250 000 on the second loan.

Company A and Company B are connected persons in relation to each.[54] Company B and Company C are also connected persons in relation to each other.[55]

Result:

2013 year of assessment:

Under section 31(5)(a) and (b) the provisions of section 31 do not apply to the financial assistance of R20 million granted by Company A to Company B and the financial assistance of R25 million (R20 million + R5 million) granted by Company B to Company C.

The deduction allowed for the interest of R2,4 million incurred by Company B is limited under section 20C(2) to the interest of R1 million received from Company C on the first loan. The excess of R1,4 million (R2,4 million – R1 million) is carried forward to Company B's 2014 year of assessment under section 20C(3)(a).

2014 year of assessment:

The interest of R1,4 million brought forward from the 2013 year of assessment is deemed under section 20C(3)(b)(i) to be an amount of interest actually incurred by Company B during the 2014 year of assessment. This deduction allowed is, however, limited under section 20C(2) to the interest of R1 million received from Company C on the first loan.

---

54 Under paragraphs (d)(v) and (e) of the definition of "connected person" in section 1(1) read with section 31(4).

55 Under paragraphs (d)(i) and (e) of the definition of "connected person" in section 1(1).

The excess of R400 000 (R1,4 million – R1 million) is carried forward to Company B's 2015 year of assessment under section 20C(3)(a).

Note:

The interest received by Company B from Company C on the second loan is not brought into account for purposes of calculating the limit under section 20C(2) because it does not relate to the financial assistance provided by Company A to Company B which was subsequently advanced by Company B to Company C.

Example 38 – Ring-fencing of interest incurred by a headquarter company

Facts:

Company X, a foreign company, advanced R30 million at an interest rate of 12% per annum to Company Y, a headquarter company in which it holds 20% of the equity shares and voting rights. Company Y advanced R18 million to Company Z and R12 million to Company T, which are both foreign companies. Company Y holds 50% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company Z and 5% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company T.

Company Y is a connected person in relation to Company X and Company Z.[56] Company Y and Company T are not connected persons in relation to each other.

Company Y incurred and received the following amounts of interest during the 2013 year of assessment, which ends on 31 December:

	R
Interest incurred on loan advanced from Company X	(3 600 000)
Interest accrued on loan advanced to Company Z	1 500 000
Interest accrued on loan advanced to Company T	1 000 000

Result:

Section 31 does not apply to R18 million of the loan received by Company Y from Company X that was subsequently advanced by Company Y to Company Z (section 31(5)(a) and (b) – see 4.2.3).

Section 31 may apply to R12 million of the loan granted by Company X to Company Y that was subsequently advanced by Company Y to Company T. The exclusion from section 31 in section 31(5)(a) does not apply because Company Y only holds 5%, which is less than the required 10%, of the equity shares and voting rights in Company T. Depending on the detailed facts a transfer pricing adjustment could be made which means that the interest deduction on the R12 million portion of the loan, that is interest of R1 440 000 (R12 million × 12%), could be reduced. Section 31 applies before section 20C(2).

The interest of R3,6 million incurred by Company Y is limited under section 20C(2) to interest of R1,5 million accrued from Company Z. The interest of R1 million accrued from Company T is not brought into account for purposes of calculating the limit under section 20C(2) because Company Y holds less than 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company T.

[56] Under paragraphs (d)(v) and (e) of the definition of "connected person" in section 1(1) read with section 31(4).

The excess of R2,1 million (R3,6 million – R1,5 million) is carried forward under section 20C(3)(a) to Company Y's 2014 year of assessment and under section 20C(3)(b)(i) is deemed to be an amount of interest actually incurred during the 2014 year of assessment on financial assistance granted to the headquarter company by a person that is not a resident.

The allowable interest could be less than the interest expense of R3,6 million if an adjustment is required under section 31. This would have an impact on the R1,5 million claimed after applying section 20C(2) (refer above) and the carry forward of R2,1 million (refer above) which would be reduced.

4.3.2 Ring-fencing of royalties incurred by headquarter companies

Under section 20C(2A) the deduction for royalties[57] incurred by a headquarter company in a year of assessment that are –

- payable to a person that is not a resident, and
- if that person is a company, that directly or indirectly, whether alone or together with any company forming part of the same group of companies as that person, holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting right in the headquarter company, is limited to amounts received by or accrued to the headquarter company on –

- the use or right of use of or permission to use any intellectual property;[58] or
- the imparting of or the undertaking to impart scientific, technical, industrial or commercial knowledge or information, or the rendering of or the undertaking to render any assistance or service in connection with the application or utilisation of such knowledge or information, from any foreign company in which the headquarter company directly or indirectly, whether alone or together with any other company forming part of the same group of companies as the headquarter company, holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

An amount of royalties disallowed under section 20C(2A) must –

- under section 20C(3)(a) be carried forward to the immediately succeeding year of assessment; and
- under section 20C(3)(b)(ii) be deemed to be an amount actually incurred by the headquarter company during that succeeding year of assessment that constitutes a royalty payable to a person that is not a resident.

[57] The term "royalty" is defined in section 20C(1) and means any amount that is, before taking into account section 49D(b), subject to withholding tax on royalties under Part IVA (see 5.2.2). In context the reference to section 49D(b) must be read as a reference to section 49D(c) in order to align it with the amendment to section 49D in the Taxation Laws Amendment Act No. 43 of 2014.

[58] As defined in section 23I(1) [see 3.2.3(b)].

Example 39 – Ring-fencing of royalties incurred by headquarter companies

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, granted the right of use of a patent to Company B, a headquarter company in which it holds 20% of the equity shares and voting rights. Company A and Company B are connected persons in relation to each other.[59] Company B granted this right of use of the patent to Company C, a South African subsidiary.

Company B paid royalties of R2 million to Company A during the 2014 year of assessment and received royalties of R1 million from Company C. Company B's year of assessment ends on 31 January.

Result:

The provisions of section 31 must be evaluated in order to assess whether they apply to the granting of the right of use of the patent by Company A to Company B. The exclusion in section 31(5)(c) does not apply because Company B did not grant the use of the patent to a qualifying foreign company. Section 31 applies before section 20C(2A).

Under section 20C(2A), the deduction for royalties of R2 million incurred by Company B is limited to Rnil.

The excess of R2 million (R2 million – Rnil) is carried forward under section 20C(3)(a) to Company B's 2015 year of assessment and under section 20C(3)(b)(ii) is deemed to be an amount actually incurred in 2015 which constitutes a royalty payable by Company B to a person that is not a resident. The amount carried forward to 2015 will be less than R2 million if an adjustment was required under section 31.

Example 40 – Ring-fencing of royalties incurred by headquarter companies

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, granted the right of use of a patent to Company B, a headquarter company in which it holds 20% of the equity shares and voting rights. Company B granted this right of use of the patent to Company C, a foreign company, in which Company B holds 40% of the equity shares and voting rights. Company B paid royalties of R2 million to Company A during the 2014 year of assessment and received royalties of R1 million from Company C. Company B's year of assessment ends on 31 January. Company B is a connected person in relation to Company A and Company C.[60]

59 Under paragraphs (d)(v) and (e) of the definition of "connected person" in section 1(1) read with section 31(4).

60 Under paragraphs (d)(v) and (e) of the definition of "connected person" in section 1(1) read with section 31(4).

Result:

Under section 31(5)(c) and (d), section 31 does not apply to the granting of the right of use of the patent by Company A to Company B and by Company B to Company C since the right of use of the patent was only granted by Company B to a foreign company (Company C) in which Company B holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

Under section 20C(2A), the deduction for royalties of R2 million incurred by Company B is limited to the royalties of R1 million received from Company C.

The excess of R1 million (R2 million – R1 million) is carried forward under section 20C(3)(a) to Company B's 2015 year of assessment and under section 20C(3)(b)(ii) is deemed to be an amount actually incurred in 2015 which constitutes a royalty payable by Company B to a person that is not a resident.

5.2 Application of the law

5.2.1 Withholding tax on interest [section 50D(1)(a)(i)(cc)]

Under section 50B(1) withholding tax on interest[61] is imposed at the rate of 15% of the amount of interest that is paid by any person to or for the benefit of a foreign person[62] to the extent that the amount is regarded as having been received or accrued from a source within South Africa under section 9(2)(b). A foreign person to which an amount of interest is paid is liable for withholding tax on interest, however any person who pays interest to or for the benefit of a foreign person must generally withhold the withholding tax on interest from the payment.[63]

Section 50B(2) provides that interest is deemed to be paid on the earlier of the date on which the interest is paid or becomes due and payable.

Under section 9(2)(b) interest is received by or accrues to a person from a source within South Africa if that amount is –

- attributable to an amount incurred by a person that is a resident, unless the interest is attributable to a permanent establishment which is situated outside South Africa; or
- received or accrues for the utilisation or application in South Africa by any person of any funds or credit obtained under any form of interest-bearing arrangement.

61 Legislation on withholding tax on interest is contained in Part IVB of Chapter II of the Act and applies to interest that is paid or becomes due and payable on or after 1 March 2015.

62 A "foreign person" is defined in section 50A(1) and means any person that is not a resident.

63 Sections 50C(1) and 50E(1).

Interest paid to a foreign person will be exempt from withholding tax on interest if, amongst others,[64] the interest is paid –[65]

- by a headquarter company; and
- on the granting of financial assistance[66] to which section 31 does not apply as a result of the application of section 31(5)(a).

Section 31(5)(a) provides that section 31 will not apply to –

- so much of the financial assistance granted by a person that is not a resident to a headquarter company,
- that is directly applied as financial assistance to,
- a foreign company in which the headquarter company directly or indirectly, whether alone or together with any company forming part of the same group of companies as the headquarter company, holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

Under section 50E(3), withholding tax on interest must be withheld at a reduced rate if the person to or for the benefit of which the payment is to be made, has submitted to the person making the payment –

- a declaration, in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, that the interest is subject to a reduced rate of tax as a result of the application of a tax treaty; and
- a written undertaking to inform the person making the payment in writing should the circumstances affecting the application of the tax treaty change.

Example 41 – Withholding tax on interest

Facts:

Company A, a company that is not a resident, advanced R50 million to Company B, a headquarter company, on 5 July 2014. Company B advanced R20 million of this loan to Company C and R10 million of the loan to Company D on 6 July 2014. Company B holds 20% of the equity shares and voting rights in Company C and in Company D. Company C and Company D are foreign companies.

Interest of R5 million is paid by Company B to Company A and interest of R2 million and R1 million is received by Company B from Company C and Company D respectively on 30 June 2015. Company B is a connected person in relation to Company A, Company C and Company D.

Result:

Application of section 31 (transfer pricing):

Under section 31(5)(a) section 31 does not apply to the amount of R30 million (R20 million + R10 million) advanced by Company A to Company B because R30 million was subsequently advanced to foreign companies (Company C and Company D) in which Company B holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

[64] See section 50D.

[65] Section 50D(1)(a)(i)(cc).

[66] As defined in section 31(1).

Section 31, however, applies to the remaining portion of R20 million (R50 million – R20 million – R10 million) that was not advanced by Company B to a foreign company in which it held at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights.

Interest exempt from withholding tax on interest under section 50D(1)(a)(i)(cc):

Company B must not withhold withholding tax on interest from the portion of the interest paid to Company A relating to the portion of the loan that Company B subsequently advanced to Company C and Company D. The calculation is as follows:

Portion of loan advanced to qualifying foreign companies / total amount of loan from Company A × interest paid to Company A

[R30 million / R50 million × R5 million] = R3 million.

Accordingly, withholding tax on interest must not be withheld from the interest of R3 million paid to Company A.

Interest subject to withholding tax on interest under section 50B(1):

Company B must withhold withholding tax on interest from the portion of the interest paid to Company A relating to the portion of the loan that Company B did not subsequently advance to a foreign company in which it holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights. The calculation is as follows:

Portion of loan not advanced to a qualifying foreign company / total amount of loan from Company A × interest paid to Company A

[R20 million / R50 million × R5 million] = R2 million.

Accordingly, withholding tax on interest of R300 000 (R2 million × 15%) must be withheld from the interest of R2 million paid to Company A.

The total interest payable to Company A was R5 million, R3 million was not subject to any withholding tax on interest ("Interest exempt from withholding tax on interest under section 50D(1)(a)(i)(cc)" above) and R2 million was subject to R300 000 withholding tax on interest.

Interest subject to ring-fencing under section 20C(2):

The interest of R5 million may be subject to section 20C(2) if the requirements of that section are met [see 4.3.1].

5.2.2 Withholding tax on royalties [section 49D(c)]

The term "royalty" is defined in section 49A as follows:

> " '[R]oyalty' means any amount that is received or accrues in respect of—
> (a) the use or right of use of or permission to use any intellectual property as defined in section 23I; or
> (b) the imparting of or the undertaking to impart any scientific, technical, industrial or commercial knowledge or information, or the rendering of or the undertaking to render any assistance or service in connection with the application or utilisation of such knowledge or information."

See 3.2.3(b) for the definition of "intellectual property" in section 23I(1).

Withholding tax on royalties[67] is levied under section 49B(1) at the rate of 15%[68] of the amount of a royalty that is paid by a person to or for the benefit of any foreign person[69] to the extent that the amount is regarded as having been received by or accrued to that foreign person from a source within South Africa under section 9(2)(c), (d), (e) or (f). A foreign person to which a royalty is paid is liable for withholding tax on royalties, however any person who pays a royalty to or for the benefit of that foreign person must generally withhold the withholding tax on royalties from the payment.[70]

An amount is received by or accrues to a person from a source within South Africa if that amount –

- constitutes a royalty that is attributable to an amount incurred by a person that is a resident, unless that royalty is attributable to a permanent establishment which is situated outside South Africa [section 9(2)(c)];
- constitutes a royalty that is received or accrues for the use or right of use of or permission to use any intellectual property[71] in South Africa [section 9(2)(d)];
- is incurred by a resident and is received or accrues for the imparting of or the undertaking to impart any scientific, technical, industrial or commercial knowledge or information, or the providing of or undertaking to provide assistance or service in connection with the application or use of such knowledge or information, unless the amount so received or accrued is attributable to a permanent establishment which is situated outside South Africa [section 9(2)(e)];or
- is received or accrues for the imparting of or the undertaking to impart any scientific, technical, industrial or commercial knowledge or information for use in South Africa, or the rendering of or the undertaking to render, any assistance or service in connection with the application or utilisation of such knowledge or information [section 9(2)(f)].

Under section 49B(2) a royalty is deemed to be paid on the earlier of the date on which the royalty is paid or becomes due and payable.

A foreign person is exempt, amongst others,[72] from withholding tax on royalties if a royalty is paid by a headquarter company for the granting of the use, right of use or permission to use intellectual property to which section 31 does not apply as a result of the exclusions contained in section 31(5)(c) (see 4.2.3).[73] An amount must not be

67 Withholding tax on royalties legislation is contained in Part IVA in Chapter II of the Act and applies on royalties paid or that become due and payable on or after 1 July 2013 and only to the extent that the amount of the royalties was not subject to tax under section 35. Section 35 previously dealt with withholding tax on royalties in respect of royalties received or accrued before 1 July 2013.

68 The rate increased from 12% to 15% in respect of royalties that are paid or that become due and payable on or after 1 January 2015.

69 The term "foreign person" is defined in section 49A and means any person that is not a resident.

70 Sections 49C(1) and 49E(1).

71 As defined in section 23I.

72 See section 49D.

73 Section 49D(c).

withheld as withholding tax from the payment of the royalty if it is exempt under section 49D(c).[74]

Under section 31(5)(c) the provisions of section 31 will not apply to so much of the granting of the use, right of use or permission to use intellectual property as defined in section 23I(1) by a non-resident person to a headquarter company as is directly granted by the headquarter company to any foreign company in which the headquarter company directly or indirectly holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights[75] and the headquarter company does not use it otherwise.

Under section 49E(3), withholding tax on royalties must be withheld at a reduced rate if the foreign person to or for the benefit of which the payment is to be made has submitted to the person making the payment a declaration, in such form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, that the royalty is subject to a reduced rate of tax as a result of the application of a tax treaty.

Example 42 – Exemption from withholding tax on royalties

Facts:

Company A, a foreign company, granted the right of use of a patent to Company B, a headquarter company on 1 July 2013. On 1 August 2013 Company B granted this right of use of the patent to Company C, a foreign company, in which Company B holds 40% of the equity shares and voting rights. This was the only use of the patent. Company B paid royalties of R2 million to Company A on 31 July 2013 and received royalties of R1 million from Company C on the same date. Company B is a connected person in relation to Company A and Company C.

Result:

Under section 31(5)(c), section 31 does not apply to the granting of the right of use of the patent by Company A to Company B since the right of use of the patent was granted by Company B to a foreign company (Company C) in which Company B holds at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights. Company A is exempt from withholding tax on royalties on the royalty payment of R2 million received from Company B under section 49D(c).

The royalties paid of R2 million may be subject to ring-fencing under section 20C(2A) if the requirements of that section are met (see 4.3.2).

5.2.3 Withholding tax on services

Legislation on the withholding tax on service is contained in Part IVC of Chapter II (sections 51A to 51H) of the Act and applies in respect of service fees that are paid or become due and payable on or after 1 January 2016. The legislation does not currently contain any exclusions for headquarter companies.

[74] Section 49E(2)(a).

[75] The headquarter company may hold that interest alone or together with any other company forming part of the same group of companies.

5.2.4 Dividends tax [sections 64E(1) and 64J(2)]

(a) Relief from dividends tax [section 64E(1)]

Dividends tax replaced Secondary Tax on Companies (STC) on 1 April 2012. Dividends –

- declared by a headquarter company before 1 April 2012 were not subject to STC; and
- declared and paid by a headquarter company on or after 1 April 2012, are not subject to dividends tax (see Example 25 in 4.2.2).

(b) STC credit of a company receiving dividends from a headquarter company [section 64J(2)]

Under section 64J(1) a dividend paid by a company is not subject to dividends tax to the extent that –

- the dividend does not exceed the STC credit[76] of the company, and
- by the date of payment the company has notified the person to whom it is paid of the amount by which the dividend reduces the STC credit of the company.

Dividends received or accrued by a company from a headquarter company before 1 April 2012 are not included in the calculation of that company's STC credit[77] for dividends tax purposes. The reason is that section 64J(2)(a) specifically excludes dividends contemplated in section 64B(3A) and section 64B(3A)(e) effectively refers to dividends declared by a headquarter company before 1 April 2012.

Dividends that accrued to a company from a headquarter company on or after 1 April 2012 will not meet the requirements of section 64J(2)(b) and will therefore not be included in the calculation of a company's STC credit for dividends tax purposes under section 64J(2)(b).

6. Anti-avoidance provisions

6.1 The law

The relevant sections of the Act are quoted in the Annexure.

6.2 Application of the law

6.2.1 A company that becomes a headquarter company (section 9H)

Section 9H(3)(b)(i) provides that when a company that is a resident becomes a headquarter company during any year of assessment of that company, that company must be treated as having disposed of each of that company's assets on the date immediately before the day on which the company becomes a headquarter company, for an amount received or accrued equal to the market value[78] of the asset on that date.

---

[76] The term "STC credit" is defined in section 64D.

[77] Section 64J(2)(a).

[78] The term "market value" is defined in section 9H(1) and means in relation to an asset, the price which could be obtained upon a sale of the asset between a willing buyer and a willing seller dealing at arm's length in an open market.

Under section 9H(3)(b)(ii) the headquarter company must be treated as having reacquired each of those assets on the day on which the company became a headquarter company at an expenditure equal to the market value referred to in section 9H(3)(b)(i).

Section 9H(3)(c)(i) provides that the year of assessment of a company that becomes a headquarter company during a year of assessment must be deemed to have ended on the date immediately before the day on which that company became a headquarter company. Under section 9H(3)(c)(ii) the next succeeding year of assessment of the headquarter company must be deemed to have commenced on the day on which the company became a headquarter company.

Section 9H(3)(c)(iii) provides that a company must, on the date immediately before the day on which the company became a headquarter company, for the purposes of section 64EA(b), be deemed to have declared and paid a dividend that consists solely of a distribution of an asset in specie. The amount of the distribution of the asset in specie must under section 9H(3)(c)(iii)(aa) be deemed to be equal to the sum of –

- the market values of all the shares in that company on that date,
- less the sum of the contributed tax capital[79] of all the classes of shares in the company as at that date.

Under section 9H(3)(c)(iii)(bb) the dividend is deemed to have been declared and paid to the persons holding shares in that company in accordance with the effective interest of those persons in the shares in the company as at the date immediately before the day on which the company became a headquarter company. The dividend deemed to have been declared and paid by the company under section 9H(3)(c)(iii) may be exempt from dividends tax under section 64FA(1), or subject to dividends tax at a reduced rate under section 64FA(2), depending on who the beneficial owners of the dividend are.

Under section 9H(4) the following assets of a company that becomes a headquarter company are excluded from section 9H(3):

- Immovable property situated in South Africa.
- A right to acquire a marketable security contemplated in section 8A.

[79] The term “contributed tax capital” is defined in section 1(1) and means, in simplified terms, the consideration received by a company for the issue of its shares.

Example 43 – A company that becomes a headquarter company

Facts:

Company A elected to be a headquarter company for the 2013 year of assessment and became one with effect from 1 January 2013. Company A's year of assessment ends on 31 December. Company A held 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in foreign companies. The equity shares and voting rights in Company A are held equally by Company B and Company C who both are residents. The balance sheet of Company A reflected the following assets and liabilities as at 31 December 2012:

	R
Cash	200 000
Equity shares in foreign companies @ market value	3 000 000
Loans receivable from the foreign companies	7 000 000
Total assets	10 200 000
Long term loans	6 000 000
Total liabilities	6 000 000
Share capital	1 000 000
Retained earnings	3 200 000
Share capital and retained earnings	4 200 000

The contributed tax capital of Company A on 31 December 2012 was R1 million.

Result:

CGT implications:

Company A is deemed under section 9H(3)(b) to have disposed of all its assets at market value on 31 December 2012 and to have reacquired those assets at the same market value on 1 January 2013.

Cash is not an "asset" as defined in paragraphs 1 and 9H(1), therefore, no capital gain or capital loss arises on its deemed disposal.

The capital gain or capital loss on the deemed disposal of the equity shares in the foreign companies must be disregarded under paragraph 64B(2) since Company A held at least 10% of the equity shares and voting rights in the foreign companies [see also 4.2.5(a)].The base cost of the debt owing to Company A is equal to its market value, therefore the capital gain on its deemed disposal is nil (R7 million – R7 million).

Dividends Tax implications:

The amount of the dividend in specie deemed to have been declared and paid by Company A under section 9H(3)(c)(iii) for the purposes of section 64EA(b) is calculated under section 9H(3)(c)(iii)(aa) as follows:

	R
Market value of shares in Company A (R10,2 million – R6 million)	4 200 000
Less: Contributed tax capital	(1 000 000)
Amount of dividend in specie deemed to have been declared and paid by Company A	3 200 000

The dividend in specie is exempt from dividends tax under section 64FA(1)(a) since it is deemed to have been paid to companies that are residents (Company B and Company C).

6.2.2 The corporate restructuring rules (section 41(1) – Definition of "company")

Section 41(2) provides that, subject to section 41(3), with regard to the transactions to which they apply, the corporate restructuring rules in sections 42 to 47 override other provisions in the Act, except sections 24BA and 103 and Part IIA of Chapter III and paragraph 11(1)(g). The corporate restructuring rules generally offer relief in the form of a deferral of the tax consequences, which would otherwise arise, until a later date.

A number of the corporate rules require, amongst other things, that the person transferring the asset or the person to whom the asset is transferred is a company as defined in section 41(1). A headquarter company is excluded from the definition of "company" in section 41(1) for purposes of the corporate restructuring rules and therefore when a headquarter company is involved often the transaction will not qualify for relief under these rules.

The election to be a headquarter company is effective from the commencement of the year of assessment for which it is made. It is therefore possible that an election to be a headquarter company will mean that a person will not be entitled to tax relief under the corporate rules on a transaction conducted during the year for which an election is made but before the election was made and on which that person had anticipated being entitled to relief.

On a case-by-case basis it is also important to consider the impact that an election to be a headquarter company will have on previous transactions, if any, which were subject to the corporate rules. Issues to consider when a company becomes a headquarter company within the timeframes prohibited under the corporate rules, include the impact of a possible –

- de-grouping as a result of the headquarter company no longer being part of the group of companies;
- deemed disposal of the company's assets under section 9H(3)(b); and
- deemed dividend declared and paid by the company under section 9H(3)(c)(iii).

Asset-for-share transactions

Section 42 provides for relief from income tax and CGT if a transaction qualifies as an "asset-for-share transaction". An "asset-for-share transaction" is defined in section 42(1) and means, amongst other things, a transaction under which a person disposes of an asset to a company which is a resident, in exchange for equity shares in that company.

Section 42 will not apply if a person disposes of an asset to a headquarter company in exchange for equity shares in that headquarter company.

Substitutive share-for-share transaction

Section 43 provides for relief from income tax and CGT if a transaction qualifies as a "substitutive-for-share transaction". A "substitutive share-for-share transaction" is defined in section 43(1) and means a transaction between a person and a company under which that person disposes of an equity share in the form of a linked unit in that company and acquires an equity share other than a linked unit in that company.

Substitutive share-for-share transactions are unlikely to apply to headquarter companies.

Amalgamation transactions

Section 44 provides for relief from income tax, CGT and dividends tax under an "amalgamation transaction". An "amalgamation transaction" is defined in section 44(1) and means, amongst other things, a transaction under which a company disposes all of its assets to another company which is a resident, by means of an amalgamation, conversion or merger, and as a result of which the amalgamated company's existence will be terminated.

Section 44 will not apply if a company disposes of all of its assets to a resultant company which is a headquarter company, or if the amalgamated company is a headquarter company.

Intra-group transactions

Section 45 provides for relief from income tax and CGT under an "intra-group transaction". An "intra-group transaction" is defined in section 45(1) and means, amongst other things, a transaction under which an asset is disposed of by one company to another company that is a resident, and both companies form part of the same group of companies as at the end of the day of that transaction.

Section 45 will not apply if a company disposes of an asset to a transferee company which is a headquarter company, or if the transferor is a headquarter company.

Unbundling transactions

Section 46 provides for relief from income tax, CGT and dividends tax under an "unbundling transaction". An "unbundling transaction" is defined in section 46(1) and means, amongst other things, a transaction under which all the equity shares of a company which is a resident (the unbundled company) that are held by a company (the unbundling company) which, if listed, is a resident, are distributed by that unbundling company to the holders of shares of the unbundling company.

Section 46 will not apply if the unbundled or unbundling company is a headquarter company.

Transactions relating to liquidation, winding-up and deregistration

Section 47 provides for roll-over relief from CGT and dividends tax under a "liquidation distribution". A "liquidation distribution" is defined in section 47(1) and means, amongst other things, a transaction under which a company distributes all its assets to its holders of shares in anticipation of or in the course of the liquidation, winding up or deregistration of the company, but only to the extent to which those assets are so disposed of to another resident company.

Section 47 will not apply if the assets are disposed of by or to a headquarter company.

7. Conclusion

A company that meets the requirements and elects to be a headquarter company under section 9I for a specific year of assessment will be entitled to the relief outlined in this Note.

A headquarter company potentially qualifies for the following relief:

- Exclusion from the CFC legislation under section 9D(2).
- Exemption from normal tax on foreign dividends received by or accrued under section 10B(2)(a) and 10B(3).
- Relaxation of the transfer pricing rules under section 31(5), but accompanied by ring-fencing of interest incurred under section 20C(2) and ring-fencing of royalties incurred under section 20C(2A).
- Relaxation of the income tax and CGT treatment of foreign exchange transactions under section 24I(3), 25D(4) and (7) and paragraph 43(1A).
- Disregarding of the capital gain or capital loss on the disposal of equity shares in a foreign company under paragraph 64B(2) and disregarding of the capital gain on a foreign return of capital received from a foreign company under paragraph 64B(4).
- A possible rebate for foreign taxes under section 6*quat*(1A), a deduction for foreign taxes under section 6*quat*(1C), or a rebate for foreign taxes under section 6*quin*(1).
- Exemption for a foreign person from withholding tax on interest under section 50D(1)(a)(i)(cc) on the interest paid by a headquarter company on so much of the financial assistance to which section 31 did not apply as a result of the application of section 31(5)(a).
- Exemption for a foreign person from withholding tax on royalties under section 49D(c) on the granting of the use, right of use or permission to use intellectual property to which section 31 does not apply as a result of the application of section 31(5)(c).
- Exclusion from dividends tax legislation under section 64E(1).

Although a headquarter company qualifies for certain tax relief, anti-avoidance provisions have been introduced to protect the South African tax base:

- A company that becomes a headquarter company is subject to CGT on the deemed disposal of some of its assets under section 9H(3)(b)(i), and to dividends tax on a dividend in specie deemed to have been declared and paid by that company under section 9H(3)(c)(iii) for purposes of section 64EA(b). The deemed disposal and deemed dividend are deemed to have taken place on the day before becoming a headquarter company.
- A headquarter company does not qualify for the relief provided for under the corporate restructuring rules in sections 41 to 47.

Section 9I came into operation with effect from the commencement of years of assessment of a headquarter company commencing on or after 1 January 2011.
