MEMORANDUM ON THE OBJECTS OF THE CHILDREN'S AMENDMENT BILL, 2015

1. BACKGROUND

- 1.1 The Children's Amendment Bill ("the Bill") seeks to amend the Children's Act, 2005 (Act No. 38 of 2005) ("the Act"), so as to give effect to recent Court judgments and to insert certain definitions; to provide that a person convicted of a sexual offence, or an offence for the possession of child pornography, be deemed unsuitable to work with children; before making a finding that a child is unsuitable to work with children, afford a child offender an opportunity to make representations as to why such an order should not be made, have the best interest of the child considered and on good cause shown, make an order that the particulars of that child not be included in the register; to provide that the National Commissioner of the South African Police Service must forward to the Director-General all the particulars of persons found unsuitable to work with children; to provide for a child offender to apply in the prescribed manner, to have their particulars removed from the Register; to provide for the review of a decision to remove a child without a court order; to extend the circumstances as to when a child is adoptable; to extend the effects of an adoption order by providing that an adoption order does not automatically terminate all parental responsibilities and rights of a parent of a child when an adoption order is granted in favour of the spouse or permanent domestic life-partner of that parent; and to provide for matters connected therewith.

2. OBJECTS OF BILL

- 2.1 In the case of J v National Director of Public Prosecutions and Another [2014] ZACC 13, the Constitutional Court handed down a judgment declaring section 50(2)(a) of the Criminal Law Sexual Offences and Related Matters Amendment Act, 2007 (Act No. 32 of 2007) ("Sexual Offences Act"), unconstitutional because the impugned provision limits the child offender's rights in terms of section 28(2) of the Constitution. Section 50(2) provides that when a person is convicted of a sexual offence against a child or person who is mentally disabled, a court must make an order to include the offender's particulars in the National Register for Sex Offenders ("Register"). The Constitutional Court said that section 50(2) of the Sexual Offences Act does not distinguish between adult and child offenders and that the "best-interests of the child standard should be flexible because individual circumstances will determine which factors secure the best interests of a particular child."¹ The Constitutional Court said the wording of section 50 of the Sexual Offences Act is peremptory in that it does not give the court any discretion regarding whether or not to include an offender's details in the Register.
- 2.2 The Constitutional Court's declaration of section 50(2)(a) of the Sexual Offences Act as unconstitutional and invalid was suspended in order to give the legislature 15 months to remedy the defect.

The Court highlighted the following factors, which it said Parliament should be mindful of:

- The operation of the Sexual Offences Act as a whole;²
- the disclosure provisions;
- the definition of 'employer' in particular; and

1. At paragraph 38

2. Para 56

- to consider the creation of a provision for child offenders included in the Register to have the opportunity to motivate that their particulars be expunged upon application.

2.3 In C and Others v Department of Health and Social Development, Gauteng and Others 2012 (2) SA 208 (CC), the Constitutional Court confirmed the order of the High Court declaring sections 151 and 152 of the Act unconstitutional, which provides for the removal of a child to a form of temporary safe care with or without a court order, to the extent that it provides for a child to be removed from family care by state officials and placed in temporary safe care, but does not provide for the child to be brought before the children's court for automatic review. To give effect to this decision, the Bill seeks to amend the Act to provide that the removal of a child to a temporary safe care without a court order be placed before the children's court for review before the expiry of the next court day and that an interim order granted in respect of the removal of a child to temporary safe care be placed before the children's court before the expiry of the next court date and that the parents, guardians or care giver be present in court.

3. CLAUSE BY CLAUSE EXPLANATION

Ad Clause 1: Amendment of section 1

3.1 Clause 1 of the Bill seeks to amend section 1 of the Act in order to insert a definition for “Constitution”, because it is not defined, even though it is used in the Act. Clause 1 also seeks to insert a definition for “sexual offence”, in order to align the Act with the Sexual Offences Act.

Ad Clause 2: Amendment of section 120

3.2 Clause 2 of the Bill seeks to amend section 120 of the Act, to provide that in criminal proceedings, subject to the proposed subsection (4A), a person must also be deemed unsuitable to work with children on conviction of any sexual offence contemplated in the Sexual Offences Act, an attempted offence, or possession of child pornography as contemplated in the Films and Publication Act, 1996 (Act No. 65 of 1996). Clause 2 further seeks to amend section 120(4)(a) by deleting the words “attempted murder, rape, indecent assault” and substituting it with a reference to any sexual offence contemplated in the Sexual Offences Act, in order to ensure that all forms of sexual offences as defined in the Sexual Offences Act, including attempted rape, are included as a ground for deeming a person to be unsuitable to work with children.

3.3 Clause 2 also seeks to substitute the word “found” in subsection (4) with the word “deemed” in order to clarify the fact that, when a person is convicted of an offence referred to in section 120(4), such a person is by operation of the law considered and deemed unsuitable to work with children. The deeming provision is intended to simplify the process of finding a person unsuitable to work with children thereby strengthening child protection.

3.4 Clause 2 also seeks to amend section 120 by inserting a subsection (4A) to give effect to the judgment in the matter of J v National Director of Public Prosecutions and Another [2014] ZACC 13, to allow child offenders to make representations before their names are included in the Register in order to ensure that the Act does not unjustly limit the rights of child offenders.

3.5 Clause 2 seeks to substitute section 120(5) of the Act by extending the application to the offences committed in the proposed subsection (4)(a) and to such offences committed outside the Republic.

Ad Clause 3: Amendment of section 122

- 3.6 Clause 3 seeks to amend section 122 to insert subsection 1(A) to compel the National Police Commissioner to submit information to the Director-General. This amendment is intended to widen the pool of sources of information to reduce the heavy reliance on the Courts. The practical difficulty in obtaining the information has motivated this proposed amendment.

Ad clause 4: Amendment of section 128

- 3.7 Clause 4 seeks to amend section 128(1) of the Act in order to provide for a person who was under the age of 18 years when he or she committed the offence in respect of which a finding was made, and whose name appears in Part B of the Register, to apply for the removal of his or her name upon attaining the age of majority. This amendment is intended to enhance and protect the rights of child offenders in line with the judgment in the matter of J v National Director of Public Prosecutions and Another [2014] ZACC 13.

Ad Clause 5: Amendment of section 150

- 3.8 Clause 5 seeks to amend section 150(1)(a) of the Act by deleting the word “the” before “child” and inserting the words “such a”. The clause seeks to clarify that a child is in need of care and protection if such child has been orphaned and does not have the ability to support himself or herself and such inability is readily evident, obvious or apparent. The amendment herein seeks to give effect to the judgment in Nono Cynthia Manana and Others v The Presiding Officer of the Children’s Court: District of Krugersdorp and Others (A3075/2011) [2013] ZA GPJHC 64 (12 April 2013).

Ad Clause 6: Insertion of section 152A

- 3.9 Clause 6 seeks to insert section 152A in order to provide for the review of a decision to remove a child without a court order. This seeks to give effect to the Constitutional Court judgment in C and Others v Department of Health and Social Development, Gauteng and Others 2012 (2) SA 208 (CC), where the court found that the removal of the child without a court order must be brought before the children’s court for review.

Ad Clause 7: Amendment of section 155

- 3.10 Clause 7 seeks to provide for a consequential amendment, which seeks to include a reference to the proposed section 152A.

Ad Clause 8: Amendment of section 159

- 3.11 Section 159 of the Act provides for the duration and extension of orders in respect of when a child is found to be in need of care and protection. Clause 8 seeks to provide that the duration and extension of such orders contemplated in section 159 of the Act excludes adoption orders and inter-country adoption orders. Clause 8 also seeks to provide that duration and extension of orders in respect of a child must not extend beyond the age of 18 years, except in respect of a child remaining in alternative care, as contemplated in section 176(2) of the Act.

Ad Clause 9: Amendment of section 230

- 3.12 Clause 9 seeks to amend section 230 of the principal Act by the addition of paragraphs (f) and (g) to include additional categories of children who may be adopted. This is aimed at correcting the omission which has been identified through the implementation of the Act.

Ad Clause 10: Amendment of section 242

3.13 Clause 10 seeks to amend section 242(2) in order to correct the unintended consequence of an adoption. The addition of paragraph (e) seeks to provide that the effect of an adoption order does not automatically terminate parental responsibilities and rights of the parent of a child, when an adoption order is granted in favour of the spouse or permanent domestic life-partner of that parent.

Ad Clause 11: Amendment of table of contents

3.14 Clause 11 seeks to provide for reference to the proposed section 152A.
