The initial draft of the Guide was distributed at a CRS workshop in February 2016.

A briefing note was issued by SARS explaining that legislative amendments to the Tax Administration Act, 2011 had been effected in order to implement a scheme whereby SARS may require South African financial institutions to collect information under the OECD Standard for Automatic Exchange of Financial Account Information in Tax Matters which encompasses the Common Reporting Standard that was endorsed by G20 Finance Ministers in 2014. The CRS is mentioned in the Tax Administration Act as an international tax standard, but is subject to changes that may be specified by the Minister of Finance in regulations issued under section 257. The CRS Regulations, as published by the Minister, are applicable as from 1 March 2016.

CASE LAW

SUPREME COURT OF APPEAL

Commissioner for South African Revenue Service v Kluh Investments (Pty) Ltd* [2016] ZASCA 5; (2016) 78 SATC 177

Facts

The taxpayer company had sold a plantation of which it was the owner.

Issue

The legal criteria that determine whether, in relation to that plantation, the taxpayer had been carrying on farming operations as envisaged in the Income Tax Act 58 of 1962, thereby triggering the application of the provisions of the First Schedule to the Income Tax Act.

Decision

On the facts of this case, the taxpayer had not been carrying on farming operations because he had no right to the use of the land on which the plantation was growing, nor had the taxpayer any right to the yield of the plantation, nor to the income from the land or the plantation; moreover, the taxpayer had granted the use of the land and the plantation to another party to farm for the latter's own benefit and on its own behalf.

Commissioner for South African Revenue Service v Coltrade International CC* [2016] ZASCA 53; (2016) 78 SATC 217

Facts

The taxpayer had imported certain products into South Africa.

Issue

Whether SARS had classified those products under the correct tariff heading for purposes of the Customs and Excise Act 91 of 1964.

Decision

It was held that it is well-established that the decisive criterion for the classification of goods for customs purposes is the objective characteristics and properties of the goods in question, and that the respondent's contentions in regard to the applicable tariff heading had been correctly upheld by the High Court.

Commissioner for the South African Revenue Service v Capstone 556 (Pty) Ltd* [2016] ZASCA 2; (2016) 78 SATC 231 (SCA)

Facts

The taxpayer had made a considerable profit from the sale of some 17 million shares that it had acquired less than a year earlier in the course of a corporate restructuring.

Issue

The criteria that determine whether the proceeds of the sale of an asset (in this case, shares in a private company) are revenue or capital.

Decision

It was held that the purpose of the acquisition has to be determined objectively, and that the correct approach is not that of a narrow legalistic nature but one that takes account of the commercial operation as such, considered in its entirety from a commercial perspective. In the present case, the primary purpose of the acquisition of the shares in issue was to rescue a major business in the retail furniture industry by a long-term investment of capital for an indeterminate period involving considerable risk and an uncertain return, and that these factors were consistent with an investment of a capital nature as distinct from a purchase of shares as trading stock for resale at a profit. The court articulated the factors, other than the taxpayer's purpose, that must be taken into account in this context and held that the respondent had proved that the proceeds of the sale of the shares in issue were of a capital nature.

HIGH COURT

New Adventure Shelf 122 (Pty) Ltd v Commissioner for South African Revenue Service Case No: 7007/2015; 17 February 2016; (2016) 78 SATC 190

Facts

The proceeds of the disposal of an asset had been taken into account by SARS in determining the taxpayer's capital gain for a particular year of assessment. In a later year of assessment, part of those proceeds became irrecoverable as a result of the cancellation of the disposal agreement.

Issue

Should the assessment for the year of disposal be re-opened in order to re-determine, in respect of that year, the taxpayer's capital gain from the disposal.

Decision

The Western Cape High Court held that a capital gain or loss falls to be determined in respect of a particular year of assessment and that where the taxpayer, in a subsequent year, ceases to be entitled to part of the proceeds of the disposal as a result of the cancellation of the agreement in issue, the re-determination of the capital gain does not replace the original determination for the year of disposal.

Commissioner for the South African Revenue Service v Brown (2016) 78 SATC 255 SARS

Facts

Professing to act in terms of its powers under s 46(4) of the Tax Administration Act 28 of 2011, SARS had issued the respondent (an individual who was not a registered taxpayer) with a so-called 'lifestyle questionnaire' to be completed and returned. In the present proceedings, SARS was applying to the High Court for an order directing the respondent to furnish a response.

Issue

Whether requiring the taxpayer to complete and return the lifestyle questionnaire was within SARS's statutory powers.

Decision

The Eastern Cape High Court held that the information sought in the questionnaire was 'relevant material' and that the issuing of the questionnaire fell within the scope of 'the administration of a tax Act'. It was held that the jurisdictional facts cited in s 46 had been established and that SARS's right to institute civil proceedings to enforce compliance with the request was ancillary to its statutory powers relating to the administration of a tax Act. It was held that the decision to issue the questionnaire was not 'administrative action' as envisaged in the Promotion of Administrative Justice Act as the decision merely involved a preliminary investigation by SARS and did not adversely affect the respondent's rights; nor did the investigation itself constitute administrative action. It was held that the Commissioner had provided sound reasons for the decision to issue the questionnaire. The court issued an order directing the respondent to respond to the lifestyle questionnaire within two weeks.

TAX COURT

ITC 1883 (2016) 78 SATC 225 (Case No: 0038)

Facts

The taxpayer had lodged an objection to assessments 65 days after the effluxion of the 30 day deadline for such lodgement, as laid down in the rules promulgated under s 103 of the Tax Administration Act 28 of 2011. The assessments were in respect of unemployment insurance, the skills development levy, employees' tax, secondary tax on companies, income tax and value-added tax.

Issue

Were there 'exceptional circumstances' that had resulted in the delay in lodging the objection? At the relevant time, s 104 of the Tax Administration Act provided that the period prescribed in the Rules could be extended by a senior SARS official if satisfied that reasonable grounds existed for the delay in lodging the objection, but that the period could not be so extended for more than 21 days unless a senior SARS official was satisfied that 'exceptional circumstances exist which gave rise to the delay in lodging the objection'.

Decision

The South Gauteng Tax Court held that the taxpayer bore the onus of satisfying the court of the existence of such exceptional circumstances and that the taxpayer in this matter had failed to discharge such onus since the factors put forward were neither unusual nor causally related to the delay.

ITC 1884 (2016) 78 SATC 272 (Case No: VAT 1237)Facts

Section 39(7) of the Value-Added Tax Act 89 of 1991 used to provide that a VAT vendor could apply for remission of both the interest and the penalty that had been imposed where SARS was paid after the end of the month during which the VAT in question should have been paid. This provision was amended by the Taxation Laws Second Amendment Act 18 of 2000 with the result that, from 1 April 2010, the basis on which the Commissioner could such remit interest was changed.

Issue

The issue before the Durban Tax Court was whether a decision by the Commissioner not to remit such interest was required to be taken in terms of s 39(7) as that provision stood before the amendment, or as the provision stood after the amendment.

Decision

It was held that the provisions of s 39(7), as amended, applied to the remission of interest that had been imposed in respect of this taxpayer by the Commissioner in terms of s 39(1)(a)(ii) of the Act. The court ordered the matter to be remitted to the Commissioner for reconsideration.
