'One of the most powerful articulations from the Global South, urging media professionals and scholars to rethink and recontextualize global journalism.' –

Anbin Shi, Tsinghua University

Herman Wasserman analyses the debates surrounding South Africa's new media presence against the backdrop of rapidly changing geopolitics. His exploration reveals how South African disputes regarding access to, and representation in, the media reflect domination and inequality in the global communication sphere. Optimists see post-apartheid media as providing a vital space that encourages exchanges of opinion in a young democracy. Critics argue that the public sphere mirrors South Africa's past divisions and privileges the viewpoints of the elite. Wasserman delves into the ways these simplistic narratives obscure the country's internal tensions, conflicts and paradoxes even as he charts the diverse nature of South Africa's entry into the global arena.

RECOMMENDED FOR:

Academics and students in the areas of Media Studies, Communication Studies, Journalism and Political Studies; journalists; the general interested lay reader.
