About this Publication:

The Promotion of Access to Information Act, 2000 (PAIA) is a pivotal piece of legislation which allows for the constitutional right of access to information.

The newly established Information Regulator provides a home for the Promotion of Access to Information Act (PAIA) and the Protection of Personal Information Act (POPI) where the interpretation, implementation and effective regulation of these statutes will be sought.

PAIA: What you need to know provides:

- all the relevant PAIA regulations and forms for anyone seeking access to information held either by the state or private entities
- accessible information on the sections of the Act, along with practical notes and a discussion of relevant judgments
- referenced POPI amendments to PAIA sections and manuals
